Thousands Get Gasoline Ration Books

CONFUSION AT MINIMUM FOR REGISTRATION

3,000 Get 'A' Books on First Day In Mansfield, Waiting Lines Few.

NEED TAX STAMP NUMBER

Peak Loads To Be Reached Today and Tomorrow at City, Rural Schools.

With a minimum of confusion, some 3,110 Mansfielders obtained their "A" ration books yesterday, on the first day of a three-day registration period for basic gasoline requirements.

A larger number was expected to register today and tomorrow, the final day for obtaining "A" books.

School officials, who supervised the registration, handled by teachers, reported few instances of persons forgetting either their license registration blanks or the numbers from their federal use stamps.

W. L. Miller, superintendent of Mansfield's public schools, reported this morning that teachers serving at the 10 elementary school registration sites readily got the "hang" of the registering process and that no congestion resulted yesterday at any hour. The first day was devoted to all owners whose last names began with letters from A to G inclusive.

Today's registration, from 2 to 9 p. m., is for persons in the H to S name group and on Friday those in the T to Z group, will register.

While yesterday's registration was somewhat under the estimated 4,000 who would submit their applications, it is expected that by tomorrow night owners of Mansfield's and Richland county's 22,000 licensed passenger autos would apply for basic A books.

Some members of the county rationing board, however, took yesterday's "short" registration as an indication that many owners have laid up their cars for the duration.

James Bailey, executive secretary of the ration board, in a survey of school site reports today, said no instances of failure to make required tire turn-ins or objections to assigning title

CITY PRAISED

Steubenville Complimented on Surprise Blackout.

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— Ralph H. Stone, chairman of the State Defense council, today complimented the city of Steubenville for its "almost complete participation" in a 16 minute surprise blackout last night.

Only two minor violations were reported in the blackout, second surprise city-wide blackout in the state and first countywide surprise blackout in Ohio, Stone said.

He reported that the three large steel mills in Steubenville blacked out "within a few minutes" and the sirens sounded and that 67 per cent of the members of the citizens' defense corps turned out.

Negotiators Seek Settlement as Workers Go Back to Jobs.

CLEVELAND —(U.P.)— Government negotiators today continued wage conferences with the Aluminum Company of America and the International Die Sinkers Union (independent) as 86 striking union members returned to work ending a three-day strike at the plant.

The strike climaxed company and union disputes over wage rates.

HURT IN WRECK

Passenger Train Crashes Into Two Derailed Cars Injuring 10.

NORTH JUDSON, Ind.—(AP)—About 10 passengers on a Pennsylvania road west bound passenger train suffered minor cuts and bruises last night when the train crashed into two derailed cars of an east bound freight three miles east of here.

Road officials in Chicago said none suffered serious injuries.

44 Dead, 350 Ill From Poisoning

As Mansfielders Register to Get Gasoline Rations

When Uncle Sam called "come and get" your rations yesterday, Mansfield motorists sought gasoline A books and not chow. In the accompanying pictures, taken at the Brinkerhoff school registration site, Miss Helen Bunn, 154 North Mulberry street, a teacher, is shown examining her coupons which entitle her to 240 miles of driving in December. At the upper right Miss Mabel Brollier, a Brinkerhoff teacher serving as a registrar, is examining the application of George W. Fox, 79 Sherman avenue. At lower left Traffic Commissioner Frend C. Boals is obtaining tire serial numbers for a fair lady motorist who had neglected this chore. At lower right Lawrence Powell and K. J. Ackerman are loading "sixth" tires which Mansfielders had turned in to the Railway Express agency. The box car will be dispatched to a government depot.

HOSPITAL'S PATIENTS DIE AFTER DINNER

'Inorganic Material' in Eggs Blamed For Mass Deaths at Oregon Institution.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— The agricultural department today ordered an immediate investigation into the handling of eggs believed responsible for the death of 44 persons in the Salem, Ore., hospital for the insane.

(By International News Service)

SALEM, Ore.—Forty-four inmates of the Oregon state mental hospital were dead today and approximately 350 others were in various stages of recovery after eating a poisoned serving of scrambled eggs for dinner Wednesday night.

Death struck swiftly after the evening meal and by midnight 30 patients had succumbed. Reports of additional deaths continued to come from five affected wards throughout the early hours of the morning as a full staff of doctors and nurses battled to save the stricken men and women.

Suspicion increased today that some "inorganic material" had been added to the frozen egg yolks which produced the lethal meal.

"The nature of the poison will not be definitely determined until a chemical analysis is made," said Dr. John C. Evans, hospital superintendent, "but it becomes more apparent from present symptoms that some inorganic material rather than ptomaine was responsible for this terrible situation.

"Most of the patients appear to be making a good recovery, but age and general condition of the patients will play an important part in their survival."

Eggs which contained the poison were taken from a supply furnished by the federal surplus commodities administration six months ago, Dr. Evans said.

"We have used eggs from this supply constantly. The egg yolks come frozen in three gallon tins. Never before have we found anything wrong with them," the doctor said.

"We immediately suspected the eggs, which were served in a scrambled style, when a lady attendant in ward three said she had noticed something strange about the food and ordered the patients not to eat it. Some of them ate the eggs before the warning was received and the attendant also tasted the food. All of those, includ-

Baptist Says It's Civilians Who Do Too Much Drinking.

JACKSON, Miss.—(AP)—Declaring he had found the drinking situation around the camps not quite so bad as it had been painted, Dr. Alfred Carpenter of Atlanta, Ga., superintendent of army camp work for southern Baptists, told Mississippi's convention last night that prohibitionists are taking unfair advantage of the current situation to advocate their cause.

"While we need liquor control around camps" he said, "our chief concern for the morals of the nation is our civilian drinking.

"It is unfair to pass the buck to the service man, unfair to put the blame on the military and it is unfair for the prohibitionists to take advantage of the situation for propaganda and arguments for obtaining prohibition aims."

BOY RESCUED

Quick-Thinking Women Pull Lad From 20-Foot Well.

COLUMBUS —(INS)— Nine-year-old Robert Laird was rescued from an abandoned 20-foot well into which he fell by two quick-thinking neighbor women.

When the boy fell through the rotten wooden cover over the well, his screams attracted Mrs. Helen Schneider and Mrs. Pauline Patterson. They called the emergency squad, but threw the boy a rope and pulled him to safety before the squad car arrived.

Lash at Axis Triangle In North Africa

Allies Make Fighting Contact In Huge Enveloping Move as Planes and Paratroops Prepare for Blow At Bizerte, Tripoli, Bengasi.

BULLETIN

CAIRO — (AP) — Vanguards of Britain's Eighth army have reached a point about 50 miles south of Bengasi and 15 miles from the eastern shore of the Gulf of Sirte, overlooking the main coastal road between Bengasi and Agedabia, it was disclosed today.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Three of the toughest armies assembled by the United Nations since the start of the war converged on the Bizerte-Tripoli-Bengasi triangle today in fighting contact with Axis forces while Allied planes and parachute troopers built up air power in preparation for the final assault to wipe the Germans and Italians from North Africa.

As the Americans and British squeezed the last Axis foothold from east and west, a motorized column of Fighting French was reported driving up from the Lake Chad base 1,200 miles to the south to put the Lorraine cross of Fighting France into the battle along with the tricolor of French North African garrisons which have joined with the Allies.

Sweeping back outlying Axis patrols, Lieut. Gen. Kenneth A. N. Anderson's First army—the veterans of Flanders—drove on into Tunisia from Algeria at several points in a sweep intended to trap and crush the German-Italian air-borne army reported digging in at Tunis, the capital, and Bizerte, the big naval base, against pro-Allied French resistance.

Leaping ahead of Anderson's ground forces, American and British parachutists were seizing vital airfields for use by follow-up units of the United States Army Air Forces and the RAF which already were gunning their way through the Axis aerial screen.

While American and British forces edged nearer Tripoli from Algeria and Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's British Eighth army maintained its advance from Egypt, Reuters quoted a Cairo dispatch broadcast by the Algiers radio as saying that an Allied force "of considerable strength" was moving north into the Libyan desert from the Fighting French bases on Lake Chad.

The Morocco radio said only about 940 miles separated a motorized column from Lake Chad and the Allied force of Lieut. Gen. K. A. N. Anderson pushing eastward through Tunisia.

There was no confirmation of this in authoritative London circles, but British observers previously noted that such an assault was possible from Lake Chad, in French Equatorial Africa some

PREDICTION: Jap Admiral Sees U. S. Planning Indies Offensive

BULLETIN

LONDON—(INS)—The German-controlled Vichy radio reported from Tokyo today that Japanese naval forces engaged an American naval squadron including two battleships and four cruisers west of Guadalcanal Sunday night. Result of the battle was not stated.

(By Associated Press)

An American offensive to recapture the Dutch East Indies was predicted today by Japan's former navy commander-in-chief, Admiral Sankichi Takahaski, even as Washington naval quarters declared it would take Japan at least three weeks to rally after the great United States sea victory in the Solomon islands Nov. 13-15.

"The Americans obviously are planning to use the Solomons as a springboard for an offensive with a view to regaining the Dutch East Indies," Admiral Takahashi said, according to a German broadcast.

"We must reckon with further heavy fighting in the Solomons," he added.

Only 24 hours earlier, the Tokyo radio claimed that the U. S. Pacific fleet had been "annihilated"—for at least the third time—and asserted that any hope of an American offensive in the South seas was "a thing of the past."

American naval experts, who asked to remain anonymous, were interested in but not unduly excited by the appearance of eight Japanese destroyers off the north coast of New Guinea yesterday. They said it was to be expected that enemy task forces would be encountered from time to time.

The three-week delay will give United States forces an opportunity to replace their relatively small losses and build up their strength for what Secretary Knox already has labeled round 3 (coming up) of the battle for the Solomons.

In fact, it would not be surprising to many informed persons here if the marines and army troops on Guadalcanal took aggressive advantage of the enemy's predicament to improve their own positions which still encompass only a small area of land about

BOSS: Nazi Bayonets Support Laval as New Chief at Vichy

BULLETIN

LONDON—(U.P.)—The Axis radio reported today that Gen. Maxime Weygand has been arrested and taken to Germany and hinted that Pierre Laval may already have negotiations in progress to bring France into the war as a full Axis partner.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Backed by German bayonets, Pierre Laval held powers of life and death over the people of unhappy France today through the Vichy government's latest gesture toward the Nazi conquerors.

It was disclosed last night that Marshal Petain at a Tuesday cabinet meeting designated the swarthy little Germanophile his heir as chief of state and gave him full powers to write his own laws and decrees.

The Paris radio said Laval would transfer the government to Paris.

British political observers were quick to declare that extended powers for Laval—whose fortunes and very life were pinned to his often affirmed belief in an ultimate Axis triumph—were a "logi-

U. S. Must Police World After War, Rep. Wadsworth Declares

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — The United States, whether a Republican or Democratic administration is in power, will at the end of the war be faced with taking a leading part in restoring order out of world chaos, Rep. James W. Wadsworth (R) N. Y., declared today, but he warned that "the American people will be in no mood to promote the establishment of an international New Deal," such as advocated by Vice President Henry Wallace.

"Republicans," he said in an exclusive interview with International News Service, "are more than willing that the United States take part in the world-wide reconstruction that will be necessary after this war, but we are not going to permit the freedom of this nation to be sacrificed in doing it."

Wadsworth, one of the most influential members of congress, author of the selective service act, and an all-out supporter of President Roosevelt's foreign policy since 1938, made it clear that he believes this nation and Great Britain will have to take the lead "in restoring world order."

"To state it frankly," he said, "we will have to police the world. It is the only way it can be done. I don't envision this continuing interminably but the grim fact is that the only way peace can be maintained and order restored is for the conquerors to hold the arms and the defeated nations to be stripped of theirs.

"It may well be that we will have to put a quart of milk on every doorstep on earth for a year or so after this war is ended," Wadsworth asserted.

"But who can say how much planned economy will be necessary the first year, the second or the third after this war is over?

'Home Front' Army Goes After Rabbits, Pheasants Tomorrow

While some 4,000 Mansfield and Richland county men are shouldering arms in the war effort, another army of just about that size will spread out over the home front tomorrow in search of pheasants and rabbits.

Sportsmen's organizations estimated that easily 4,000 Richland county men—and women and boys—will take to the field on the opening day of hunting season.

Agencies issuing hunting licenses said that despite the war it appears that there will be just as many hunters as usual this year.

The season opens at 12 noon tomorrow and, take it from Don Waters, state conservation commissioner, hunters can anticipate more rabbits and pheasants than there have been for many years.

The pheasant, Hungarian partridges and ruffed grouse season ends Dec. 5, while nimrods can continue their rabbit hunts

FAIL TO AGREE ON 6-DAY WEEK

Miners, Operators Break Off Negotiations in Discord on Overtime Pay.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — United Mine Workers, led by their president John L. Lewis, and soft coal operators of the Apalachian joint wage conference, headed by Charles O'Neill have failed to agree after long negotiations on a proposal for a six-day week for 400,000 bituminous miners.

Harold L. Ickes, solid fuel administrator, requested in September that the soft coal industry go on a six-day basis in order that 600,000,000 tons be produced in 1943. Operators and miners have since been trying to work out a satisfactory formula for a six day week.

Lewis said yesterday when negotiations ended that the miners were willing to adopt the six-day week under the current wage contract which provided for time and a half for overtime, but the operators insisted that six-day week be contingent on an upward revision in the ceiling price of coal.

O'Neill said the operators would re-submit their case to Washington in an effort to get a coal price increase sufficient to cover increased cost of operations.

Sport Podge by REX HESS

The war has broken up a lot of sport teams in Mansfield in the past year. Now it's getting around to the Mansfield Provident Loans, twice champions of Ohio girls' softball teams.

Provident's infield is practically wrecked right now. It is well known to one and all that Jean Herrick, second sacker, left for service in the WAACs last Sunday.

Now Donna Schuster, guardian of the hot corner, has received notification that she has passed examinations for the WAACs and has been instructed to be ready to report for duty on call after two weeks.

If they play next summer, and gas rationing makes that very improbable, the Providents will have to find another third sacker They won't find another Donnie Schuster to pep up the team and keep its morale at top pitch.

It's no secret that when she took a trip to Tennessee last summer, the Providents looked like anything but champions with her out of the lineup, even though they won a game at Painesville.

Donna knows her baseball as well as any ball player in town, and "Doc" Daugherty was preparing her last summer to take over full management of the team.

"I hope the WAACs take me when those two weeks are up," says Donna, "I don't want to have to wait six weeks, even if that would take in Christmas."

Mansfield fans are beginning to believe Canton McKinley will take Massillon in the big game of the Ohio high school football season Saturday at Massillon.

They base this belief not so much on McKinley's much greater margin of victory over Mansfield, nor even on McKinley's victory last week over previously undefeated Lakewood, but on Massillon's poor showing in the last two games.

They can't forget the fact that Toledo Waite scored 14 points against Massillon and actually outgained the Tigers in yardage. And they are far from impressed by Massillon's 13-6 victory over Erie (Pa.) East last week.

What's the matter with Massillon? has been the question whenever the Bulldog-Tiger game was discussed.

The matter seems to be that Bob Graber was injured in the Warren game and that Fred Cardinal never fully recovered from the injury which kept him out of the Mansfield game.

Both Graber and Cardinal have been working out this week but they are reported at only 50 per cent efficiency. Pellegrini who tossed some sensational passes for the Tigers against Mansfield has been filling in for Graber while Mastran sub fullback has been taking Cardinal's place They do not fill the shoes of Graber and Cardinal

While Massillon has gone 52 games without defeat, it has also gone 29 games without defeat by an Ohio team, and in that 29 game streak Mansfield is the only team to even tie the Tigers. Mansfield did it twice and hoped the string would continue until the Tygers could break it.

* * *

Mansfield hockey fans, including Earl (Pooch) Pollock, who called up about it, want to know the Cleveland Barons' schedule before gas rationing goes into effect Dec 1.

The Barons play Pittsburgh Saturday night, and New Haven on Sunday, Nov. 29. That's the last chance.

J. Wells Leads Tappan Women

Ohio Hope Of Victory Increased

Tommy James May Yet Be Able to Play.

By JOHN COLBURN

COLUMBUS—(AP)—A possibility, slight though it was, that "Touchdown Tommy" James might be able to ramble Saturday against Michigan today raised hopes of Ohio State's rabid fandom for their first victory in five years over their bitter rivals.

Thomas Laverne James, a freckle-faced Massillon red-head, came into his own last Saturday as a "spot" runner, scoring touchdowns on 76 and 33 yard runs against Illinois. But before the game was half over he was thrown hard out-of-bounds and suffered a shoulder separation.

While Coach Paul Brown has insisted the past three days that he was not counting o. the fast, 160-pounder in the Big Ten championship tilt with Michigan, he told the Downtown Quarterback club last night:

"Tommy has not been out of the dressing room all week However, he is a boy who responds to treatment and he has never missed a game either in high school or thus far in college. There is a possibility that I may be able to use him a little Saturday at the right wingback, where he can carry the ball in his left arm."

The right wingback, played regularly by Les Horvath, another light speedster, wouldn't be a new spot for Sophomore James who has alternated with Paul Sarringhaus at left halfback. James played right wingback with Mighty Massillon high school under Brown.

Ohio State and Michigan wind up their heavy workouts today for the nation's top collegiate clash which will be witnessed by about 80,000 fans.

Ohio can win an undisputed Western conference championship by beating Michigan, but a Michigan victory would jumble the standings and give the Wolverines a chance for the title.

After a long Wednesday session of concentrating on new, deceptive plays to be used against Michigan, Ohio was to take up more of the same thing this afternoon. Defensive workouts against Michigan offensive formations also were slated.

* * *

At Ann Arbor, reserves donned the type of scarlet jerseys used by Ohio and the Ohio State plays against the Wolverine varsity. Coach Fritz Crisler, who maintains that only a trick play can upset the Bucks, gave his team more new plays.

As a prelude to Saturday's game, the freshman teams of Michigan and Ohio State will meet in the stadium Friday at 3.30 p. m.

Ohio State officials announced that all reserved tickets for the Saturday game had been sold, assuring the large t crowd for the nation this season

Massillon Gets Favorite Role

CLEVELAND—(INS)—The nation's top school boy football team, Washington high of Massillon O., went through its paces today with an eye on an eighth consecutive title championship and a string of 53 games without defeat

Canton McKinley high, the team which scored its last victory over the Tigers in 1934, will be Massillon's opponent and though Coach Elwood Kammer's wonder boys will be heavy favorites, his main job this week has been to convince his charges that they simply cannot let their guard down at any time.

Kammer's strength will be somewhat lessened if his triple threat star Bob Graber who has been nursing a sprained ankle is unable to start for the Tigers if he isn't ready Sophomore Romeo Pellegrini will take over the halfback position for Graber

CO-WORKERS PITCH IN, HELP DRAFTEE BUILD HIS COTTAGE

PAINESVILLE — On the edge of this little Ohio city is a small, neat cottage, valued higher than the Empire State building and Radio City combined.

Technically, it's worth about five hundred dollars. Actually you couldn't buy it with a king's ransom.

For to Painesville folks — and owner Franklin Waite—this is the House That Friendship Built.

Waite was a big, likeable, popular guard at a construction company here. For months, he saved and scrimped to buy materials with which to build a new cottage. He was going to construct it himself in his spare time.

Just as he was about to start, the army drafted him, and the Waite family resigned itself to disappointment.

Fellow workmen at the construction plant learned of Waite's troubles and the whispering and planning began.

For a week about a dozen painters and 50 carpenters didn't stop work at quitting time; they grabbed their tools and brushes and went to the leafy grove on the edge of town where Waite had planned to build his cottage.

For a week, the grove rang with the sound of hammers and saws, with the rough, comradely talk of men whose sentiment is expressed in deeds, not words.

To work after dusk, they strung a makeshift light line from a nearby residence. Both the painters' and the carpenters' unions contributed beer and sandwiches to make up for the meals the men missed at home.

After the cottage was built, the painters coated it with white paint. When Franklin Waite finally saw it, he almost broke down and cried.

"I've never known anybody like these guys," he muttered.

So Franklin Waite is now in the army, knowing that back in Painesville, his wife and daughter are sheltered in a comfortable, white cottage—in the House That Friendship Built.

4-H CLUBS BUY STAMPS, BONDS

Ohio Farm Boys, Girls Purchase $139,503 Worth, Sell Some, Too.

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Ohio 4-H club's 45,000 rural boys and girls have purchased $139,503 worth of war stamps and bonds and have sold a total of $77,601 worth of bonds and stamps to other people in addition to their other contributions to the war effort such as the great quantities of food they have produced.

W. H. Palmer, state club leader, Ohio State university, says that 4-H club members checked 2,970 farm homes and 3,289 other farm buildings to detect and eliminate fire hazards during the recent drive by the agricultural extension service to reduce the number of farm fires.

Immediately after Pearl Harbor, club members began salvage work and still continue to collect needed materials. Totals for the state recently compiled by Palmer, credit the boys and girls with gathering 1,874,880 pounds of metal, 568,086 pounds of rubber, 298,150 pounds of paper, 74,526 pounds of rags, and 13,289 pounds of fat.

In addition to the regular club work which calls for a definite task to be finished and reported, the members devoted 1,724,692 days to field work and 1,355,865 days to household tasks on their farms.

FIND RUBBER IN NEW TREE

Experts Develop Source In South Africa; Predict Good Quality.

DURBAN—(U.P.)—American rubber experts co-operating with South African experimenters have developed a new source of rubber from the South African tree, the Euphorbia Trucalli.

Engineers of Dunlop, South Africa, Ltd., the tire firm, have conducted tests with the rubber extracted from the latex of the Euphorbia. The latex has been cleared of excess resin and is expected to become an important supplementary source of rubber supply. The experiments with Euphorbia latex have been carried on in an old sugar mill in Natal.

The Dunlop experts state that the Euphorbia rubber is not quite the same as Hevea (para) rubber but has a lower tensile strength and higher elongation strength. It is expected to be used for a great variety of rubber products and even for tires in some instances, although it is not expected that Euphorbia rubber will be used alone in tire making.

An independent technical expert commenting on Euphorbia rubber stated that it did not compare in all respects favorably with Hevea rubber, but that it had many uses and even without complete extraction of the resin content, the Euphorbia latex can be used in high proportion in many products.

There are estimated to be millions of Euphorbia tirucalli trees growing in Natal—unofficially it is stated some 1,000 square miles of the province are covered by this tree.

A problem now solved was how to tap the trees without killing them. A special tool has been developed and the sap can be drawn without reducing the life of the trees materially.

Girls Row 750 Miles To Land Jobs As Cooks

DAWSON, Alaska—(INS)—A 750 mile trip down the Yukon in a rowboat and a hike from Anchorage to Copper Center has brought two former California girls a job as cannery cooks, with no dimming of the wanderlust.

The two girls—Mary Fitzpatrick and Phyl James—began their voyage in Juneau with a sixteen-foot skiff equipped with an outboard motor. The motor became waterlogged, and the two Cheechako lasses rowed the Yukon from Juneau to Skagway.

After spending the winter in Anchorage the adventuresome maidens began traveling again.

"It was a grand and glorious experience, perfect in every respect," they said, but the army said 'no' to their plan to keep going. They began working in the cannery, cooking for 45.

But the two gritty gals are just waiting till the end of the season now. There's still more trips to take.

CHAPTER XX

"Oh, but I'd have tried harder if I'd known it was really the picture," protested Livia.

"You were hard enough," muttered Terry.

"We're through for today," said Fordyce shrewdly. He had a good shot. "Let's go out and have a drink," he said jubilantly.

"That's what I came here for," said the Countess brightening, "I want Terry, and you, and Alice—Oh, she's gone, well no matter, Miss Clarkson can come perhaps. We have to celebrate the formation of a new picture company. 'The Saskia Pictures, Inc.'" Terry wished he had played up to the Countess more. But it wasn't too late, he hoped.

"Darling, congratulations," he said and kissed and hugged her until the Countess said:

"Stop! D'ye want to change the shape of me?" Then she said breathlessly to Fordyce, "That's why I came to see you. I want you to direct my first film. It's—"

"Sorry," said Fordyce, "But I'm under contract to Schneider, and until he fires me—" This was a blow for the Countess, but she soon recovered.

"Well, we'll have a drink anyway," she said. "You can wish good luck to my new producer."

"Who is it?" Terry asked. Whoever it was would be worth cultivating.

"You were engaged to his sister once," she said sweetly. "It's Bruce Nolan."

"I don't believe it," said Livia involuntarily.

As they left the studio a short, dapper man with the cranium of an ape accosted them.

"Hello, Terry," he said familiarly. The actor's face paled.

"I'll join you," he said to the others and hurried off to the waiting car. The Countess shivered.

"Dreadful looking man," she said. "Is he a gangster?"

"A producer—probably," said Fordyce. "Terry has been playing the horses again—and badly—to judge by his friends."

Livia had barely noticed his departure. She was thinking it must be true about Bruce marrying the Countess. What experience did Bruce have to qualify for a producer? However, she was glad he was getting away from stunting. He couldn't be lucky always. But to work for the Countess!

"Why not?" Bruce said. When he met them at the Beachcomber. She knew she was being unfair. Bruce had always wanted to produce pictures, and she had encouraged this in their early days. What difference did it make that a woman was paying his salary? None. If only the Countess weren't so blatantly in love with him!

"I'd like you to direct my picture," Bruce told Charles Fordyce.

"He can't," the Countess giggled. "Alice Delaware won't let him."

"I'll take whomever you recommend," Bruce said. His story was a Western. It was about horses and wide open spaces, he knew a lot about both. This was the chief reason he had accepted Countess Saskia's offer. He would have preferred other backing, but he would increase her investment.

"Have you a part for me in the pictures?" Livia said teasingly. The rum drink had gone to her head.

"Oh, no," said the Countess hastily. "We only want experienced actresses."

"I was asking your producer—not you." Livia smiled at the Countess, then turned again to Bruce.

"Sure there's a part for you," he drawled, "We need a leading lady."

"I was joking," said Livia.

They all drank to the new picture company. But Bruce and Livia avoided looking at each other.

* * *

Fordyce took her home. She lived alone now. Bertha, after leaving the hospital, was going back to her people in Minnesota. Livia was depressed.

"Other people get gay when they drink; but me, I either go to sleep or get sad."

Fordyce brought her close to him and tried to kiss her lips. Livia wondered whether he was going to be troublesome.

"I'm tired," she told him. She was putting him off again, Charles smiled.

"I've just discovered something," he said. She waited apprehensively. Did he know something new about her father?

"What have you discovered?" she asked him.

"That you don't like me."

"Charles!" she reproached him. "Don't quarrel with me now, I have a headache." He could have crushed her between his strong arms.

"I'm not quite that bad—or desperate," he said to himself. And aloud. "Good night then."

"Good night." Her cool lips brushed his cheek.

The persistent ringing of the telephone awakened her.

"Hello, yes . . . Terry Davidson? . . . Yes, of course, I'm alone."

"I must see you at once." Terry's voice was urgent.

"Why?"

"I'll tell you when I see you."

"But I'm asleep." She had no intention of boring herself with a tete-a-tete with Terry Davidson.

"I'll be with you in a minute," said Terry. The click in her ear followed.

"I won't let him in," she decided.

She thought of calling Bruce, but it was not yet 11 o'clock and he was probably with the Countess, he had talked of dinner at her house.

Thirty minutes later the doorbell rang, startling her from the half doze into which she had fallen.

"Nice place you have," said Terry and lit a cigaret and slumped into a chair. He smoked in silence, made several attempts to start a conversation, then lapsed into silence again.

"It's getting late, Terry," Livia reminded him gently. "And I have to be early at the studio tomorrow. What did you want to see me about?" Terry stubbed out his cigaret.

"Whatever happens," he said slowly, "I don't want you to blame me. It's got nothing to do with me. I'm acting as a sort of agent between the parties."

"Come to the point." Livia's voice was sharp.

"Your father—" said Terry slowly and looked swiftly at Livia to see the effect of his words. Her face was blank.

"My father died before I was born," she said.

He grinned. "We both know better."

"All right—what about my father?" she demanded.

"He's in trouble."

"That's nothing new with Earl Dixon. But why do you care?"

"I don't," said Terry bluntly.

"Then—"

"Those men outside the studio—your father owes them a lot of money."

"But I still don't understand where you come in?"

"Aw—they once did me a favor," said Terry. "And they know I'm in the picture with you. Anyway, Dixon owes them a lot of money."

"How much?"

"To be exact—three thousand dollars."

"What happens if he doesn't pay?"

Terry shivered. "It's not nice. One day you disappear and then someone finds you in a quiet doorway with a bullet through your head. It's better to pay."

"But he can't," said Livia. She tried to keep the horror out of her voice. She was dealing with bad people, and they must not know she was scared.

"We know that," said Terry. He came closer to her. "But you can—not all at once—say $50 a week."

Livia detested Dixon more at this minute than ever before. Suppose they killed him? But why should she care?

"I won't do it," she said flatly. "Good night."

She stood up and indicated the door. A memory of Vera's description of Earl Dixon with the band and wanting them to play "Erocia" in memory of a great man made her relent.

"I'll help," she said, "But I want to see him."

"Better not," advised Terry, "He's in bad shape. Besides he's living now with the boys—they have to make sure he pays."

Livia wrote out a check. This left her with exactly $15 in the bank. She had given $25 to Vera only that afternoon. One hundred and fifty dollars a week wasn't much after all.

"I'd rather people didn't know just now that Earl Dixon is my father," she told Terry at the door. She strove to keep her voice casual.

"You're absolutely safe," he assured her. "Good night, see you in the movies." And he was gone.

Every Wednesday Livia sent $50 to the address Terry had given her. Terry did not mention the subject again. He avoided her and between scenes shut himself in his dressing room. Livia resolutely thrust the matter into the background of her consciousness.

There was never more than a line or two for her to speak at a time. And Fordyce was patient, rehearsing over and over again before putting her in front of the camera. For the difficult emotional scenes he repeated the trick of pretending it was a rehearsal. The actual "take" was discarded, but Livia did not know this.

She looked soft and young in her nurse's uniform with her cap set jauntily back on her red-gold hair.

"You're a new type of meanie," Fordyce kidded her one day, "You look innocent—that's why I picked you for the part."

"Do you really think I'll be a star, really and honestly?" How attractive she was, her lovely eyes shining as though he owned the world and could break it up and give her pieces at will.

"This picture is only a beginning. I won't fool you. We'll probably cut most of your part—Alice will see to that, anyway. But keep working; don't get a swelled head and if you're lucky, you might be a star one day. I don't see why not."

"I'll never be swelled-headed. I used to be conceited—I thought everything had to happen my way. But I've been through a lot."

He didn't believe her. There was an untouched look about her face and except for a flicker of alarm in her gray-blue eyes, she seemed an irresponsive girl just out of high school.

Sometimes producing a picture was easy. But this was not one of those times. The picture came the hard way—like all films in which Alice Delaware starred. She had 'flu after the first three weeks and the picture had to be suspended for ten days. Terry Davidson had a nervous breakdown. One day he stopped in the middle of a line and burst into tears. Shooting was called off while Fordyce talked to him in his dressing room.

"It's my creditors. I owe everyone in town," he wept to the director. "They're crucifying me." Charles lent him some money and sent him home.

But finally the last foot of film was safely in the cans, and then Fordyce collapsed, but with relief. He was three days in the California hospital. He came out to tackle the job of cutting and editing.

Fortunately, Alice decided her health required a month in Arizona. Charles trimmed his film without interference.

And now it was the night of the press review. Livia expected to go with Charles Fordyce. But at the last moment Alice returned from Phoenix.

"She's giving a dinner party, and I have to go with her to the preview," explained Charles.

"I'm too nervous to go anyway," she said.

Livia passed the evening driving aimlessly along the coast. She did not return home until midnight. The telephone was ringing as she opened the door, and she almost fell over in her eagerness to answer it. It was Charles Fordyce, and he was jubilant.

"The picture went over swell," he told her, "I've been calling you since eleven. You made a hit, baby. After your scene with Terry, they clapped their hands off. And is Alice mad! Don't go to bed now. I'm coming over. This calls for a real celebration."

- ¾ cup milk (about)
- 6 (¾ lb.) parboiled frankfurters

Imagine savory meat and vegetable flavors blending with those exquisitely tender, flaky biscuit rolls! And remember, no matter what you want to bake, be it biscuits like these, or luscious cakes, cookies, pies, or the finest home-made breads you ever baked, Pillsbury's Best is exactly the flour you need. For Pillsbury's Best is a truly all-purpose flour. It's truly dependable, too, for it's BAKE-PROVED by actual baking tests 4 to 6 times daily during milling. Satisfaction guaranteed or your money back.

1. Sift flour once, measure; add baking powder and salt; sift again. 2. Cut in shortening until mixture resembles coarse meal. Add milk all at once; mix only until all flour is dampened. 3. Knead a few seconds on lightly floured board to smooth surface. Roll out dough into 12x8-inch rectangle; cut into six 4-inch squares. 4. Skin frankfurters. Roll each in a biscuit dough square; seal edge. 5. Cut each frankfurter in half crosswise. Place cut side up over hot mixture. Bake in hot oven until biscuit is done. 6. Serve hot with remaining hot tomato mixture.

Good! They'll love every morsel of this thrifty busy-day dinner! And they'll get something extra from it, too—because Pillsbury's Best is enriched with two essential B-vitamins and iron. Bake it tonight—and you'll depend on Pillsbury's Best for all your baking from now on.

See! Genuine Percale Apron—Yours for Pillsbury Thrift Stars! Keep fresh and comfortable in this gay, stylishly cut bib apron of 80-square percale. Attractive tulip design in rubfast colors. It's another of the premium values you can get with Pillsbury Thrift Stars, which come with Pillsbury's Best and other Pillsbury products. For details see recipe folder in your Pillsbury's Best bag or write Pillsbury Flour Mills, Dept. 48, Minneapolis, for new edition of "Pillsbury's Thrift Star Premium Catalog."

IRREGULARITY CONTINUES ON STOCK MARKET

Westinghouse Included Among Stocks Showing Gains In Early Dealings.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Indecisive price shifts continued in today's early stock market proceedings.

At a quiet opening gainers of fractions included U. S. Steel, Westinghouse, and Bethlehem. Slightly lower were Chrysler, Texas company, International Harvester and Radio corporation.

Market analysts discerned a hopeful sign in estimates of another upswing in the country's bank clearings.

Holders of rails noted transportation rigures indicating gross revenues of the principal carriers were running about 35 per cent over a year ago. Limited facilities and equipment shortages, however, were expected to preclude much improvement in income during 1943.

LAVAL TAKES VICHY CONTROL

Backed By Nazi Bayonets as Petain Turns Over Full Powers.

cal development." They said it showed definitely that the octogenarian Petain "is completely in the hands of the Germans and they put Laval in."

In the official Vichy announcement, the 86-year-old marshal praised Laval for "patriotism and foresight," explained that the chief of government was being given extended power so that he may "speedily deal at any hour and in all places" with France's problems.

Canceling a previous decree which had designated Admiral Jean Darlan, now co-operating with the Allies in Africa, as his successor, Petain named Laval to take over as chief of state in the event of the marshal's permanent incapacity.

A Vichy communique on the action, reported by the Berlin radio, said that Petain "as chief of state will continue to represent French sovereignty and the continued existence of the country" and added that Laval would "keep the marshal constantly informed" of his endeavors.

Of most immediate concern to the Allies was the course Laval plans to steer in the matter of possible military aid to the Axis.

Thus far he and Petain have not heeded the demands of the radically pro-German party of Jacques Doriot that France declare war at once upon the United States and Great Britain because of their occupation of French North Africa.

Laval quickly accepted resignations of Vice Admiral G. A. J. P. Auphan as secretary of state for the navy, and Robert Gibrat, secretary of state for communications.

Admiral Jean Mario Abrial succeeded Admiral Auphan, who was a supporter of Darlan. Jean Bichelonne combined Gibrat's duties with his present post of secretary of state for industrial production.

Admits Diplomacy Brought African Coup

LONDON —(INS)— Frank admission that Allied secret diplomacy had put an end to much of Vichy's pro-Nazism was voiced by Marcel Deat today coincident with announcement that Pierre Laval is transferring the French government back to Paris.

Deat, editor of the newspaper L'Oeuvre and outstanding champion of French subservience to Adolf Hitler, said that Vichy would be abandoned because "it has become the symbol of all that is rotten."

CITED IN COURT

Youth Accused of Leaving Scene of Accident.

John L. Muhlback, 19, of 195 West First street, was to appear in traffic court this afternoon to explain his alleged flight last night from the scene of an accident at Walnut and Third streets.

Patrolman Arthur Conrady reported he pursued the youth's car through several streets before a flat tire halted him. According to the report Muhlback's car damaged the auto of Walter Cox, 23 Stewart avenue, as the latter was pulling away from a parking space. The motorcycle patrolman witnessed the collision and gave chase.

Mrs. Grace K. Miller, 145 East First street, reported her parked auto damaged by a truck driven by Edward Shadel, Mansfield R. D. 3, in front of her home late yesterday. Patrolman Conrady reported that "no parking signs" were displayed in the area where the truck had been working. The truck driver said he backed his rig, as usual, and rammed into Mrs. Miller's car.

Christmas... for Children Only?
Do children have a monopoly on Christmas? We think not. All of us, young and old, share the delights of the Day of Days. It's a matter of degree. Little Mary shouts with joy at a cradle for her dolly. Little Mary's mother finds herself too choked up to speak, when she discovers a new, beautiful chair for her bedroom. Little Tommy outshouts his sister when he unwraps a new sled. Little Tommy's father, grinning broadly, says: "Shucks . . . you shouldn't have done that," when his astonished eyes fall on a brand new, tilt-type lounge chair. And it is true, you know, that most folks get the greatest delight out of gifts of furniture. This year of all years, Home gets first consideration.

THEATER GROUP LAUNCHES NEW PLAN SATURDAY

2 Groups to Be Under Direction of Margaret Hopper and Walter Ellsberg.

Dividing for the first time into two groups for the regular winter series of monthly program and study meetings the Children's theater membership will launch a new season of activity this weekend under the direction of Miss Margaret Hopper and Walter Ellsberg who will conduct the courses in the absence of Harold McCuen, director of the group, now located in Cleveland.

The younger group of some 40 members will organize Saturday in the Larwill room of the Mansfield Public library where Miss Hopper, first grade teacher at Hedges school, will conduct classes from 10:30 a. m. to 11:45 p. m. The season's program will be featured by a Christmas party at the Y. W. C. A. in December.

Choric reading, story telling, impromptu plays and make-up will comprise the program for the season and the members will respond to roll call by telling their favorite story, poem or play and its author.

Advanced members of the theater workshop will meet with Ellsberg Sunday afternoon at the home of Miss Bettie Gibson, 282 West Fourth street, to hear their work outlined. Play analysis, character relationship and a procedure for learning lines will be emphasized.

Ellsberg, who was associated with the professional theater in New York for more than 20 years and assisted in staging such productions as Morris Gest's "The Miracle," and "The Vagabond King," was more recently in Hollywood as personal assistant to Richard Boleslavsky.

The program was recently approved by the theater board of directors which will meet within the next week to fill several vacancies in the executive group.

Wartime Drama.

A wealthy woman finds "life as usual" an impossibility after America is drawn into the war and how she meets the challenge provides motivation for the Ohio attraction, "The War Against Mrs. Hadley," starring Fay Bainter, Edward Arnold and Richard Ney. Edward Arnold plays the socialite's suitor and Spring Byington and Dorothy Morris are others in the cast.

Romantic Comedy.

Dimmed-out Manhattan is the locale of the Madison attraction, "Girl Trouble," romantic comedy starring Don Ameche and Joan Bennett. Ameche appears as a South American plantation owner trying to interest an American tire magnate, Frank Craven, in his product. Joan Bennett poses as Ameche's maid and the cast includes Billie Burke and Alan Dinehart. "Get Hep to Love," the co-feature, has Gloria Jean in the role of a child singing celebrity who runs away from home to live a normal life.

His romantic problems start when he prevents Jean Phillips from jumping off a building ledge. But the jump is only part of a publicity stunt for Jean. J. Carrol Naish and Richard Lane are in the cast. Tom Tyler and Bob Steele are featured in the second picture, "Valley of Hunted Men."

Musical Attraction.

DRIVE GETS GUAYULE TIRE

SALINAS, Cal.—(U.P.)—Included in contributions to the scrap rubber drive here was one of the first tires ever made completely of guayule rubber. It was constructed for the International Rubber company in 1925 and was turned in during a clean-up of samples and scraps from the guayule rubber mill and nursery. One of the tires made at that time is now in the Smithsonian Institute. More than a ton of guayule scraps and products were included.

WOOSTER —(INS)— Charles F. Wishart, president of Wooster college, disagrees with educators who would abolish football for the duration. In a speech to students in the chapel, he pointed out that football is one of the greatest character builders he knows.

He pointed out that one of the best cures for the sin of jealousy is to be found in keen competition on the athletic field. There a boy must learn to think of other people as well as himself; to play for the team and to recognize the superior qualities of another boy without falling into the pit of undue self-debasement, President Wishart pointed out.

THREE ARMIES CONVERGING ON AXIS TRIANGLE

Make Fighting Contact For Final Blow at Bengasi, Tripoli and Bizerte.

1,200 miles south of the Mediterranean.

Dispatches from Allied headquarters of Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower disclosed that the advance into Tunisia was a two-way operation, one force striking in the north, where both the naval base of Bizerte and the capital of Tunis are situated, and the other in the south, across the trails of a direct route to Tripoli.

"Advance elements of the British First army, together with British and American parachute troops and French forces operating with us have entered Tunisia at several points," a communique said.

"Contacts have been made with enemy scouting parties."

Flying fortresses of Brig. Gen. James H. Doolittle's command were reported to have set oil tanks ablaze, exploded munitions dumps, wrecked grounded planes and destroyed a German fighter in a daylight raid on German-occupied Bizerte while RAF bombers struck at other objectives in the French protectorate.

Simultaneously fresh resistance to the Axis infiltrations spread in Tunisia. French parties were said to have fought German attempts to land more air-borne troops to bolster forces already estimated at 10,000.

Axis U-boats and aerial forays against the American-occupied North African coast were declared proving costly.

The communique said 11 enemy aircraft were known to have been destroyed against an Allied loss of three, during the period from Sunday through Tuesday in the area of Bone, Algeria.

"The hunt of submarines by ships of the royal navy, naval aircraft and the RAF continues," it said, "and with considerable success."

United States forces were welcomed by the Sultan of Morocco with an expression of "our best wishes" for mutual prosperity of the United Nations.

Bombers Cross Alps To Blast Turin

LONDON —(AP)— Britain's heavy four-motored bombers streaked across the Alps last night and delivered another heavy blow at Italy, choosing the big Fiat works at Turin for their chief target, the air ministry announced.

With clear skies to aid them the RAF bombers accomplished "good results" on this, the fifth big raid on Italy this month, without the loss of a plane, the official announcement stated.

"Last night aircraft of the bomber command attacked the Fiat works and other targets at Turin. The sky over northern Italy was clear and the crews report good results. None of our aircraft is missing," the communique said.

Turin is an airplane, motor car and machine producing city on the River Po, the chief sea of industry in Italy. It was last raided by the RAF twice in succession, Oct. 22 and 23.

The Royal Arsenal, the Fiat Engine Works and a branch of the Caproni Works are among military targets of the city, which had been attacked 20 times during the war.

Allies Threaten Nazi, Italian Air Bases

LONDON — (AP) — Germany, Italy and their bases in occupied countries are threatened by aerial assault from all directions in the coming months, an assault which may outstrip the heavy blows delivered by the RAF from one direction during the past summer, unofficial observers noted today.

To meet the threat, these observers said, the German air force will be compelled to spread itself thin.

These sources estimate the German air strength at about 5,000 first-line combat planes. Italian at about 2,000.

With these planes the Axis must now defend not only the long front from the Caucasus to Leningrad in Russia, the Norwegian coast where large Axis forces have been based to strike at Russian-bound convoys, the German home front, and the Libyan desert, but must also now face a new threat from northwest Africa.

Russians Take Lead On Two Fronts

MOSCOW — (AP) — Extending their job of bleeding and blocking the German armies, the Russians have taken the initiative in Stalingrad and in the Caucasus, today's battle reports showed.

The midday communique reported no major changes anywhere but said that during the night "our troops launched active operations and captured several enemy fortifications" in southern Stalingrad.

In a factory area of the staunch Volga stronghold, wrapped for two days in fog, the Germans returned to the attack during the night but were driven back with 200 killed, the latest reports said.

Soviet troops also were reported in active operations which scored some advance northeast of Taupse along the Black Sea coast in the western Caucasus while 300 of the enemy were said to have been killed in an artillery-supported infantry attack southeast of Nalchik in the mid-Caucasus.

Yank Shock Troops Take Beach Near Algiers

ing the attendant, were stricken."

Effects of the poisoned food struck swiftly. Some were taken sick in the dining room a few minutes after eating the eggs. Others doubled up in hallways and had to be carried to their beds.

All physicians and nurses on day and night shifts were summoned to the hospital as soon as the terrible score of the poisoning became evident. The staff immediately administered emetics to the stricken patients in an effort to relieve their intense suffering.

Determination that the eggs contained the poison was reached after a hurried investigation revealed that those who did not eat the egg preparation were not taken sick. Others complained that the food tasted strange.

Hospital attendants said the eggs were brought to Salem from Portland in a refrigerator truck and presumably had been supplied by the state welfare administration.

A complete analysis of the frozen eggs was to be made today in an attempt to definitely determine the source and type of poison.

Patients began complaining of illness within a few minutes after finishing the evening meal. Those affected by the poison were patients of the less violent type who helped themselves and were able to do some work around the hospital.

Cut Ribbon Friday For Formal Alaska Highway Opening

WHITEHORSE, Yukon Territory—(AP)—A ribbon of red, white and blue will be slashed and flung to the Arctic wind Friday, opening the Alaska highway.

Between the fluttering colors of the United States and Canada will roll an army truck manned by two proud soldiers from the ranks, to be followed by cars bearing civil and military officials of the two nations. This will be the vanguard of a series of mighty convoys—convoys safe from submarine and all but immune to air attack—which will move north toward Japan.

Dignitaries of Canada and Alaska will join the jubilant northwest service corps in celebrating the epochal engineering feat of the war, a road pushed 1,681 miles through one of the world's great wildernesses in seven months and 17 days.

WILL APPROVE 6-LANE ROAD

Highway Department to O. K. Freeway to Cleveland Plant.

CLEVELAND—(INS)— Plans for a $2,000,000 six-lane arterial highway linking Puritas road in Cleveland and Berea outskirts for the use of traffic to the Cleveland aircraft assembly plant, will be approved by the state highway department's regional planning office at Ravenna within a week, it was learned today.

North and south traffic will be routed over an elevated Cloverleaf near the present Brookpark road-Rocky River drive junction. The freeway will be 15,800 feet long, with two roads, 36 feet wide, divided by a center strip.

Construction will get under way next spring.

through Jan. 5. Hunting does not open until noon the first day, but the remainder of the season hours will be from 8:30 a. m. to 6:30 p. m., except for raccoons which may be hunted through Jan. 15, from 7 p. m. to 7 a. m. The season on mink, muskrat, opossum and skunk is the same, except in the Lake Erie district where mink and muskrat may be taken as late as March 15.

The daily bag limit on pheasants is two cock birds the first day with four in possession after the first day; Hungarian partridge, four, with four in possession after the first day, and ruffed grouse, two the first day, with four in possession after the first day. Daily limit on rabbits remains the same as last year—four. But the limit on the number which may be possessed after the first day has been increased to eight.

With a limit placed on the amount of ammunition sold this year, due to the war, sporting goods dealers today voiced the opinion that there will be considerably fewer "practice" shots this year. Buyers of 12-gauge shells were limited to three boxes per customer, while owners of 1-gauge guns were able to buy but two boxes each. However, those buying 410-gauge shells were limited to just one box each.

Tomorrow will also mark the opening of the red fox season in southern Ohio counties, extending until Feb. 1. There is no closed season for red fox in the northern zone.

Commissioner Waters urged that "hunters should take common sense safety measures and be real sportsmen. Before hunting on land, they should ask permission of the owner and conduct themselves so that they will be welcome guests."

Wadsworth Says People Will Be In No Mood For a Global New Deal.

Some people seem to be advocating an international regimentation — a 'liberal' regimentation, of course—but whoever heard of a regimentation that was liberal?

"Mr. Wallace for example, makes it plain that he still has in mind regimentation of agriculture and industry and is antagonistic to what we know as free enterprise. This administration has already made it clear that it thinks the American kind of free enterprise is at an end.

"Personally, I can't conceive of the United States attempting to regiment the people of the world much less its own people. Of course, immediately following the war, when governments, as such, will have to help people get on their feet again, we may find ourselves called upon to straighten out the internal affairs of chaotic nations.

"To do this, it is absolutely essential that Germany and Japan be stripped of arms for many years to come. For how long, I would not like definitely to say, but certainly until they've learned to be peaceful citizens in this world."

Wadsworth termed the recent congressional elections as "a notice to this administration to put the brake on its extreme thinking."

ASKS PRAYERS

Bricker Proclaims Nov. 26 as Thanksgiving Day.

COLUMBUS— (INS) —Governor Bricker today proclaimed Nov. 26, the traditional last Thursday of the month, as Thanksgiving day in Ohio and called upon "all citizens to observe it with prayers of Thanksgiving, to display the American flag as a symbol of our national unity and to join in prayer to almighty God that the American way of life, freedom and liberty shall live."

"Thanksgiving day, 1942," he said, "finds America engaged in a global war to preserve the American way of life against the totalitarian way of life.

"In these critical days, we are more conscious than ever before of the need of giving thanks to almighty God, not only for the material benefits we have received but for the spiritual heritage which gives us the faith and courage to make all sacrifices necessary that our way of life shall continue."

the airport on the north coast of the island.

The last report on land fighting on Guadalcanal, covering activities of Nov. 10, said the United States troops were conducting offensive operations on both their eastern and western flanks. The failure of the Japanese, already outnumbered, to land any considerable reinforcements would seem to leave their forces open to attack, especially since it will be difficult if not impossible for them to obtain substantial supplies for some time to come.

The effect on future operations of the blow dealt the Japanese at sea, as naval men here estimate it, must be measured not only in ships sunk but also in men and materials lost. Eleven warships and eight transports were sunk and four cargo vessels which the Japs had beached were destroyed after the battle. Seven warships were damaged.

U. S. Bombers Hunt Jap Destroyers

GEN. MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia— (AP) — American heavy bombers hunted through spotty weather today for a Japanese destroyer force off the New Guinea coast near Buna while Allied ground forces closed within 25 miles of that Papuan beachhead.

Reports from New Guinea did not indicate what job may have been assigned to the eight destroyers deploying off Buna, although the noon communique said they apparently planned to aid the ground forces being pinned against the coast.

While the American and Australian jungle fighters pushed cautiously forward against little or no organized resistance outside Buna, General MacArthur's airmen hit the enemy hard and often throughout the southwestern Pacific theater.

Predicts Jap Drive On Yunnan Province

CHUNGKING —(AP)— A Chinese army spokesman reported today there were indications the Japanese were preparing to drive into Yunnan province, southwest China, from French Indo-China.

This thrust, he said, would be coordinated with one from the section of Yunnan province adjacent to Burma which the Japanese occupied last spring. They have been stationary there since May.

The spokesman said the Japanese recently secretly increased their strength in Yunnan by 12,000 men, bringing the total to 30,000, and at the same time bolstering their air forces at Wanting and other air fields in the occupied border region.

He said reports received here say that the Japanese have commandeered all rolling stock in northern and southern Burma for military purposes and suspended all civilian passenger traffic.

British Bombers Hit Jap Burmese Airport

NEW DELHI—(INS)—British Wellington bombers during the night carried out a heavy attack against the Japanese airdrome at Meiktila, Burma, starting many large fires, a communique from Allied general headquarters in India said today.

Royal Air Force heavy bombers were disclosed to have attacked a Jap airdrome at the port of Rangoon on Tuesday night. Large fires also were started at this enemy base.

Blenheims at the same time attacked the Magwe airdrome "with good effect," the communique said.

THOUSANDS GET GAS RATIONING COUPON BOOKS

to excess tires (any over five per car) had been noted.

In the village and rural schools registration pursued a normal course, according to County Superintendent Boyd Robinson, although one or two sites were confronted with a threatened shortage of A books. New supplies were distributed this morning.

"The ease with which teachers carried out their duties," Superintendent Miller said, "at first mildly alarmed site administrators and rationing officials because no jams or congestions occurred, as had been anticipated."

With the registrars well experienced from their first day's contact with the motoring public today's maximum registration is expected to move along smoothly.

Meanwhile, Chairman W. J. Spreng of the gasoline rationing panel announced the dates, hours and other regulations for the supplemental gas rationing registration next week and through Nov. 30, at John Simpson Junior high school gymnasium.

"Be brief in your explanatory conversations and don't visit with the registrar" is the warning caution Spreng announced today for all A book and supplemental applicants as a means of facilitating the registration.

Several motorists, recently arrived from eastern states where they were registered for gas rations, made adjustment application yesterday and their books were "tailored" to fit Ohio rationing regulations.

In announcing the supplemental registration today Spreng explained that the applicant (who can obtain blanks when applying to his A book) must take the blank from the registration site and fill it out carefully.

If the applicant is employed in a war plant with 100 or more workers he must have his application signed by the proper representative of the plant's transportation committee. When completed, the driver may deliver the application in person or mail it to the registration office at John Simpson high school or the rationing board, 43 North Mulberry street.

"Processing of these supplemental applications will take time and when a decision is reached on each form the applicant will be notified by mail," Spreng explained. This will avoid confusion and congestion in the rationing board office, he hopes.

Volunteer workers who had agreed to work the afternoon shift will work on the new schedule of 1 to 5 p. m. and those on the evening shift will serve from 6 to 9 p. m. under the new setup. Workers who have been assigned to shifts but who will be unable to serve the new hours are directed to notify Paul English at phone 4121-6 before Nov. 22. Workers who will work the first shift on Nov. 23 are asked to report at 12 noon for instructions.

All applicants in Richland county will register at the rationing board offices, excepting residents of Sharon, Jackson, Cass and Plymouth townships who will register at the Shelby sub-office.

John Simpson Junior high school is at West Fourth and Bowman streets.

Supplemental rationing applicants will register as follows, the alphabetical designations being the first letter of the applicant's last name:

Monday, Nov. 23—A-B-C.
Tuesday, Nov. 24—D-E-F-G.
Wednesday, Nov. 25—H-I-J-K-L.
Friday, Nov. 27—M-N-O-P-Q.
Saturday, Nov. 28—R-S.
Monday, Nov. 30—T-U-V-W-X-Y-Z.

Applicants are directed to note the difference in time from A book registration, the supplemental hours being 1 to 5 p. m. and 6 to 9 p. m. and at John Simpson school only.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 19, 1942.

Don't forget to register for gasoline.

Globes are convenient for study just now—even if it's only the continents that remain unchanged.

At some time, when things have settled down a bit, Eddie Rickenbacker will probably enjoy reading some of those premature obituaries.

Information Helpful To the Enemy

AS NEARLY as can be judged by study of divergent opinions on the subject of wartime censorship, there are no responsible supporters of an idea that any information should be revealed which would be helpful to the enemy.

Complaint has been made on several occasions that news has been withheld from the American people long after it was known to the enemy and it is on this point that controversy hinges.

In a talk Tuesday evening President Roosevelt mentioned what he called a "mistake" in announcing the sinking of an American aircraft carrier in the Pacific before the Japanese had the information, and explained that he had "yielded to public clamor . . . partly in realization of the certainty that if news of the sinking were given out two or three weeks later it would be publicly charged that the news had been suppressed by me until after the election."

While the American people believe that it is their right to be as fully informed as possible on the progress of the war, there has been no discernible "public clamor" for premature announcement of any happenings that might benefit the enemy in even a small way, and it is regrettable that President Roosevelt had military movements and the election so closely coupled in his mind that he made a revelation which it is now claimed was useful to the Japanese in giving them "a military advantage which they would otherwise not have had."

If mistakes are to be made, as they will probably continue to be, they will be safer on the side of TOO MUCH secrecy in military movements, rather than NOT ENOUGH.

Penalty for Rent Control Violation

LOOKING over the elaborate three-color printed form which all persons who rent "a room or group of rooms" will be required to fill out and file with the local rent control board, one cheerful paragraph is noted.

The penalty provision states: "A false statement on this form or an evasion or attempted evasion of the maximum rent regulation may subject you to a $5,000 fine or imprisonment for one year."

Heretofore, in both sugar rationing and in applications for gasoline rationing cards, Americans have been threatened by their government with punishments "ranging as high as ten years imprisonment or $10,000 fine, or both" for false statements or violation of regulations, and it is interesting to note that rent control violators will be considered less heinous offenders than fellow citizens who do not comply with sugar and gasoline regulations.

In commenting on the frequency with which Americans are now being threatened with "ten years imprisonment or $10,000 fine, or both," the Columbus Dispatch says editorially: "How about asking the people to do some of the difficult things required of them, instead of forever waving a threat under their noses. . . . No national administration in history has ever threatened and bulldozed the people in a time of crisis and common peril as has the New Deal bureaucracy. . . . The average murderer serves less than ten years in prison and doesn't have to pay a fine to boot."

Thoughtful observers of rent conditions in this area express firm conviction that all purposes of that item of governmental control could be satisfactorily accomplished through courts and other official agencies of local government, with consequent saving of the thousands of dollars that will be paid out in salaries, rental costs and administrative expenses—but saving public money is an idea that apparently has not yet impressed Washington.

School Employes Request More Pay

THE REQUEST by engineers, firemen and other mechanical workers in the Mansfield public school system, for wage increases and "better working conditions," touches on a subject regarding which the public is unlikely to be well informed.

About all that is generally understood is that a high percentage of local taxes goes into maintenance of the public school system, but the extent to which this provides for reasonable pay to employes is not given much thought by taxpayers.

It could scarcely be expected that civil service positions offering the permanency assured such public employes can be made competitive in wage scales with temporary war plant jobs, but there is also no reason why Mansfield school employes shouldn't be paid as much as is being paid for similar work in other cities in Mansfield's population bracket, if this is not being done.

Safety and proper upkeep of school buildings and equipment require that capable men be kept in such positions as engineers, firemen and for other mechanical work in the schools, and following the school board's promised study of the problem, further information on the subject will be of public interest.

Oil For the Wheels of War

PEOPLE living along the main line of railroads going from the interior to the Atlantic coast have been impressed by the great number of oil cars traveling east in what looks like an unending stream. There appears to be enough oil in transit to keep the entire civilian driving population on the road, and to run a war too.

But not so. In the week ending October 10th the tank car shipments were only 766,000 barrels a day. This sounds like a lot, but according to Ralph Davis, deputy petroleum co-ordinator, it was the lowest week since July. Keeping the stream of oil flowing eastward will, according to Mr. Davis, be a most difficult task. There are a great many tank cars, but not many after caring for the needs of the armed services. So in spite of all that can be done, the east will continue for a time to be short of oil.

THIS MATTER OF WALKING

How Willkie Helped Fool Hitler

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—Wendell Willkie played a tremendous part in the Roosevelt-Churchill hoaxing of the Axis about the North African invasion, but every indication is that Willkie merely obeyed orders, with no more information about the major strategy than a detachment of infantry ordered to hold a bridge at all hazards in order to carry out a scheme which only the general and a few aides comprehend.

This is the considered opinion of some Washington observers. They have even reconstructed the conversation between F. D. R. and Willkie before the 1940 candidate started on his round the world trip. They figure that the president, toying with his cigaret holder, was unusually gracious, even stating frankly that he wanted Mr. Willkie to feel free to say anything he thought necessary. Lest Willkie, through a desire not to upset any apple carts, should fail to stress the point F. D. R. and Churchill wanted stressed, observers believe the president actually mentioned the second front to Willkie.

For instance like this: When you arrive in Moscow you will find the Russians are crazy for the United States and Britain to start a second front in Europe at once. If you think, after surveying the situation for yourself, that there SHOULD be a second front in Europe, do not hesitate to say so. It will not embarrass me. In fact it might even be a little helpful. Perhaps we—and the British—need a little prodding!

NOW bear in mind that, with this sort of instruction, and after his own observations in Egypt, Willkie was bound to use the words "in Europe" after the words "second front" in any statement he made. He would not, obviously, just say "second front" without adding "in Europe" because he would know, from his visit to Egypt, that there WAS a second front in North Africa already—a front of considerable importance and magnitude.

But he would also know that Stalin, for a very long time, has been insisting that this North African front was not enough. In spite of its existence, and in spite of the very obvious importance of the defense of Egypt, and with it of the Suez canal and the supply line to Russia via the Red sea, Stalin wanted more. He wanted something that would result in detaching part of the German armies attacking his country. So Stalin always talked about a second front with emphasis on the words "in Europe."

NOW consider what F. D. R. must have foreseen as to Hitler's reaction to the outbursts of Willkie about a second front in Europe. Here was the opposition party in America adding its pressure to that of a strong group in Britain for a second front in Europe right away. Hitler might figure, easily, that political reasons might force Churchill and Roosevelt into starting one. Hence Hitler would lay his plans accordingly, figuring that the United Nations would be goaded into striking somewhere in Europe, and getting ready to give them a warm reception.

With considerable reason, Hitler thought he could bring about another Dunkirk if the United Nations attempted that. So there is little wonder that, when the various submarines (as reported by correspondents with the convoys since) observed the ship movements they did not attack. Hitler did not want a little gain, like the sinking of a few troop ships. He wanted another Dunkirk, with all the booty and prestige it would involve. He was badly fooled.

Listen World!

Streamlined Life

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

I DON'T KNOW what sort of a world we'll have after we've dug ourselves out of the present mess, but I'm sure of one thing—we'll have learned to streamline our lives. And how we need it!

Take me, myself, for instance, as Horrible Example No. 1. For years I've advocated the simple life and preached against the tyranny of Things. And honestly believed I was practicing my own theories. But I had a lesson this morning which certainly showed me how we can kid ourselves. I was cleaning the kitchen shelves and linen cabinet. I've enough shelves in my big ranch kitchen to accommodate the commissary department of the U. S. Army.

Yearly I retire various deluxe or useless gadgets to the top file, keeping the practical, every-day stuff within easy reach. Well, today I started on that retired list, and was my face red! There was an actual mountain of trash and trinkets over which I must have wasted years of fuss and fret.

Remember, Mabel, those fancy chocolate sets with the thimble size cups? Have we ever seen anyone actually drink out of such contraptions? We have not! Yet, come house-cleaning time, we have dragged them out, swabbed them off, changed the shelf paper, solemnly put them back.

Remember those trick salad and fish plates that were always too good to use—or maybe the neighbors wouldn't know how to use them? And the individual salt dishes with their individual spoons? And the wine service you'd hid way back on the shelf because your mother-in-law was a prohibitionist? Besides, who ever drinks wine out of a wine service when any old mug is handy?

And that's only the beginning. There were those 597 broken odds and ends that I was going to have mended some day. The old onyx clock that looks like a first-class tombstone now. The chafing dish with the busted handle. The faded artificial geranium plant I was always going to re-tint. The fancy butter molds and the towering candle sticks I was supposed to light on state occasions but always forgot.

Junk—every bit of it. Junk on which I wasted endless time, energy and sentiment. For what? For nothing. And the linen cabinet was as bad or worse. Those scads n' scads of little doilies which took such hours of elaborate ironing . . . those tea cloths and breakfast sets that invariably faded with the first washing . . . those crocheted doodads to be put on the backs of our arm chairs! Were we crazy, Mabel? Yes, dearie, we were. For all the time a few plain dishes and a clean strip of cloth would have served our every purpose and been 100 times more fun.

Nor was that all. Sitting there on the stepladder, with a smooch on my nose, I realized that our minds had been as cluttered as our kitchen shelves, cluttered with all kinds of senseless conventions and taboos. Silly fears. Prudish complexes. Broken dreams that would never be mended. But we clung to them anyway, wasting our emotions over them when they should have gone out of the window and made way for fresh, new hope and happiness. Nutty notions about life and other men and women, antiquated as Aunt Belinda's bustle.

Well, said I, stepping firmly and joyously on a tea caddy, that era is over. Chances are we'll always be a little touched in the head, we humans. But the wife who must tend a big house and family without help, and probably swing a job in addition, isn't going to take half the day to iron fancy-work. And the girl who stands eight hours in a foundry, riding herd on a machine, isn't going to waste her precious leisure polishing salt spoons.

SHE'S GOING TO DEMAND THAT LIFE BE AS STREAMLINED AS THE STEEL SHE WELDS, AND HAPPINESS AS CLEAN FROM CLUTTER. AND IT WILL CERTAINLY BE A SWELL DAY FOR US ALL WHEN IT HAPPENS.

Timely Editorial

Victory Tax.

There seems to be a widespread confusion in the public mind about the Victory tax, one of the subsidiary features of great money-raising measure recently passed by congress.

The Victory tax is not a tax on business. It is a tax on incomes. Its principal application is to those who earn wages or salaries. It does not operate against the first $12 per week or $624 a year of any person's wages or salary. Those amounts are exempted. If, for example, a person earns $25 a week, the Victory tax he must pay on this is 5 per cent of $13, or 65 cents, which must be deducted by his employer, except in the case of agricultural and domestic workers. The employer does not have to pay an equivalent amount or any part, as in the case of the Social Security tax.

So the Victory tax is no hardship on small business concerns, and its burden on those of low incomes is not heavy.—Springfield News.

Interpreting the War News

Primitive Drums Flashed Tidings Of African Invasion to Far Places

—By DE WITT MACKENZIE

(Editor's note: Dewitt Mackenzie resumes today, from Cairo, his daily interpretive column. For the past 11 days he has been en route from England, a trip complicated by the Allied campaign in North Africa. He was in Lisbon when the occupation of French North Africa started and was stranded five days in West Africa waiting plane transportation to Cairo.)

* * *

CAIRO—From the Mediterranean sea down to the steaming equator, Africa's huge hulk is vibrating with news of the great Allied victories along its broad northern shores.

There in the hinterland we find men from many Allied Nations responding with feverish energy in an effort to back up their colleagues on the battlefield.

There are Yankee boys there from all parts of Uncle Sam's wide acres. And you have to experience the hardships of primitive Africa to understand in smiling America what a glorious heritage we are defending.

There are British and French soldiers and others of our Allies, all working in fine unison.

With them, laboring on the edge of jungles and across blazing deserts, is a countless multitude of willing natives. These happy-dispositioned folk know little about the issues involved in the war, but they do understand that an Axis victory means bondage.

And what are these soldier and civilian workers contributing to the cause? Broadly, one can say these Allied men are daring diseases of the jungle, enduring terrible heat and other hardships to open up and maintain transport routes over which pour men and supplies for the Allies' needs throughout northern Africa and the Middle East.

In many places, over endless reaches of this northern half of the Dark Continent, the Allies are doing amazing pioneering jobs which will open up this mysterious land to the outside world.

During the 11 days it took me to reach Cairo from England by devious routes, I covered some 8,000 miles, mainly by air. Since I had already flown the Atlantic to reach Britain, it needs small imagination to see that if this war does nothing else, it is opening up the world to air transport.

I was in Lisbon the day Uncle Sam made his sensational landing on northern Africa. The medley of peoples who go to make up the Portuguese capital's population these days seethed with excitement.

There was little news beyond word that a big operation was under way, but the fact that the Allies had assumed the offensive in a new quarter was in itself a momentous development.

WHEN we drove the nose of our ship into the heat of Equatorial Africa the next day, word of the offensive already had arrived. American soldiers and civilians in this particular port were exuberant.

Most astonishing, however, was the fact that the denizens of the surrounding jungles not only knew of the attack but that they got the news from their own sources. It seems fanciful as I write it, but the story of the operation on the far-away northern shore had been flashed southward by drums just as messages have been transmitted for hundreds of years.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — Buried under those headlines about the United Nations' great offensive in Africa is an important footnote in history—a vindication of our department of state for its long-suffering policy of appeasement toward the Nazi-dominated government of Vichy, France.

If those bitter critics of Secretary Hull and our foreign policy toward Vichy had had foresight instead of hindsight, they might have referred to and pondered over a state department memorandum issued in October, 1940 (and that date is correct) pointing out to the army and navy the great military importance of North Africa and Dakar and Liberia all the way through to the Red Sea.

If the Axis had had foresight, they might have studied that memorandum and seen in it the germ of the military campaign which is being referred to as the second front.

WHEN the news was out and it seemed apparent that our initial beach-heads in North Africa had been established, Secretary Hull held a special press conference. It was on a Sunday afternoon and that was almost as much of a jolt to the little band of reporters who cover the state department as the news that had come before.

The "Old Man," as many of the Washington press corps affectionately refer to the dean of the war cabinet, was in fine form. His conversation, some of it off the record (which is also unusual) was splattered with good old Tennessee talk. It was plain to be seen that a great weight had been lifted from the secretary's mind. The burden of balancing that precarious load—"Relations with Vichy"—was no longer on the belabored back of the department of state.

A half-dozen times in the last year, the relations with Vichy have stretched to the breaking point. Had they been allowed to reach that point, the Axis would have had to move in on North Africa. It would have had no alternative. Somehow, the state department managed to avert all those crises until the army, navy, and other military forces in the United Nations were ready for the great offensive now launched.

ALL of that time the department of state was taking it on the chin with charges that it was the most namby-pamby department of our government in prosecution of this war. The criticism reached its zenith recently with the criticism by Wendell Willkie after his return from his world tour.

In answer to that, Secretary Hull said simply that the department of state and the administration were in complete agreement on the foreign policy toward Vichy.

Why shouldn't they have been? By that time, the huge expeditionary force to North Africa was on its way. The behind-the-scenes battle of North Africa entrusted to the department of state—a preliminary without which the main bout would have not been possible—had been won.

Daily Bible Thought

From a child thou hast known the holy scriptures, which are able to make thee wise unto salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus. All scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness.—II Timothy 3:15-16.

Man About Manhattan

The Brighter Side

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Always one to see the bright side of things, particularly with a war on, I would like to report that things around the Associated Press offices here in town are considerably more interesting now that there are young women—taking the places of editors and copy boys who have gone into the armed services or have become war correspondents.

For instance, there's pretty Flora Lewis, who files the outgoing night wire to Great Britain for APGB. She is a rare combination of brains and brunette beauty, being a product of U.C.L.A. and the Columbia School of Journalism, and I am sure that no other news-stand in town has anybody to match Flora.

And there was a lovely red-headed colleen named Kathleen Holmes, tall and slender, who replaced one of the copy boys and often went around with carbon smudges on her pert little nose. She lived way out in Brooklyn, however, and the late hours and long subway rides proved too much, which was sad because all of Kathleen's "big brothers" were hoping she would stay until she was 18, anyway.

ALL of which is by way of prelude to Annie Rooney. Yes, there's actually an AP office girl named Annie Rooney, and the name fits her like a sweater. She is 17 and has red hair and greenish eyes and is very slender and pert, a lot like Kathleen though not so tall. And she has the sense of humor you might expect a girl named Annie Rooney to have.

The other day one of the editors, whom I will call R. W. since his name is Rader Winget, announced a quintuple blassed event at his home, the family cat having had five kittens in a bureau drawer.

Annie Rooney came along. "You know, Annie," said R. W., after a bit, "I wish I had a secretary, just exactly like you, only ten years older."

"Why, Mr. W!" said Annie. "And you a married man with five kittens!"

* * *

IT WAS only a couple of days ago, too, that another one of the editorial executives, whom I will call Mr. X because he probably would have me fired if I used his name, was accosted by Annie.

"Mr. X," she said, "can you say the sentence 'What am I doing?' with four different inflections?"

Mr. X beamed kindly. "Of course. WHAT am I doing? What AM I doing? What am I doing? What am I DOING?"

"Making yourself ridiculous," said Annie, giggling.

* * *

I SAID some of the young women were very young. One of them, a copy "boy," has a terrific crush on one of the sports writers, practically swooning every time he brushes past her.

Well, just yesterday, this was, Annie happened around again. "Hello, Mr. B," she said, sweetly.

When Mr. B had passed, the copy "boy" looked at Annie sourly, and out of the corner of her mouth muttered: "Lay offa him, see?"

A Farmer's Diary

International Friends

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

I VISITED an average farm home in a county north of here. The evening chores were done, the evening meal was over. I noticed a large iron pot on the back of the steel range and numerous bowls upon the table. I judged they had had that wholesome Pennsylvania Dutch supper—parched cornmeal mush and creamy milk. The spacious kitchen smelled of it. A large teakettle on top the stove sang and gave forth volumes of grayish steam.

The farmer and I conversed in an adjoining room while in the kitchen the dishes were washed by the mother, dried and put on the cupboard shelf by the daughter, a junior in high school. When the table was cleared, one by one the schoolboys gathered about it with their books, tablets and pencils. There were arithmetics, geographies, algebra. The daughter came finally, with a box of fine stationery and her fountain pen and began to write a letter.

"You're writing to him again?" the oldest brother remarked teasingly. "Well, a kid so far down under won't bother us up here."

"If he was closer, I'd be worried—for none of us could understand anything they said—those two," said the mother, smiling as she sewed some necessary buttons on a pair of work pants.

Then the farmer explained to me the meaning of this bit of overheard conversation. "Our consolidated school has a Spanish class that corresponds with South American youngsters. Since Jennie's been getting letters from some young people down there, we're all learning more about government and geography and the habits of those countries than you can find in any books.

"I say these students are actually making history. Their correspondents are chosen from among the thinking classes—the leaders and rulers of tomorrow. If we'd tried, as a nation to make friendship between our own students and those of Germany, Russia, Turkey, India, Japan and China—that is, if we'd been broadminded enough to take a personal interest in 'em and exchange college students, who make the leaders—maybe letters of friendship after the last war would have been better than ammunition and the flower of American manhood gone off again to war now. Hind sight's a great thing, ain't it? I hope our kids will manage better than I did—I used to think, let them tend to their business, and we'll tend ours."

MAKE STUDY OF TRUCK HAULING

Experiment Station Wants To Know How Operations Are Carried Out.

WOOSTER — Anticipating the need for complete information on the use of automotive equipment in assembling and distributing fresh fruits and vegetables in order to comply with emergency regulations governing mileage, speed, loading, and use of trucks, Charles W. Hauck of the department of rural economics and rural sociology of the Ohio Agricultural Experiment station is making a study of transportation operations in the Cleveland market.

This survey will cover every trip of every truck operated by firms in the Northern Ohio food terminal for a period of four weeks. It will furnish a complete picture of the magnitude and importance of the business transacted in that terminal and of the extent to which trucks are employed in this distributive industry. The present survey is the first comprehensive venture of its kind ever undertaken in this market.

The study is sponsored locally by the Cleveland branch of the national league of wholesale fresh fruit and vegetable distributors. Cooperating are 60 firms in and adjacent to the terminal, out-of-town patrons of these firms, and many growers who supply produce sold in the terminal.

Upon completion, survey results will be released in a publication of the experiment station.

German Leaders Beginning to 'Isolate' Hitler, Report

FORM JUNTA FOR DEALING WITH ALLIES

Diplomat Says Group Headed By von Brauchitsch Splitting With Nazis in Germany.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON — A reliable foreign diplomatic source who cannot be further identified said today that an important junta of aristocratic German military leaders, convinced that Hitler cannot win the war, has begun to "isolate" the fuehrer in order to establish themselves favorably with the Allies in the event of a stalemate, peace or defeat.

The foreign diplomatic source, who said he believed his information is reliable, declared leaders of the junta included Field Marshal General Walther von Brauchitsch, who was dismissed as army commander-in-chief last winter after counseling against Hitler's winter campaign against Moscow; Field Marshal Fedor von Bock, who was ousted in the midst of these generals are reported to have disagreed with Hitler's strategy.

Also included in the junta, it was reported, are Gen. Franz Halder, who like Von Bock wanted to withdraw the southeastern German armies behind the Don before it was too late this fall; Gen. Fritz Erich von Mannstein, Field Marshal Gen. Karl Rudolf Gerd von Rundstedt and Gen. Johannes Blaskowitz.

Advices from usually reliable quarters inside Germany and occupied countries, the informant said, indicated that two prime factors were behind the formation of the defeatist junta—increasing dissatisfaction with Hitler's intuition as a guide to strategy, and his steady nazification of the army and high command.

Some members of the junta were said to be "deliberately provoking Hitler's ire so as to be dismissed or relegated from places of responsibility in order to be able to blame him directly for the disastrous last winter in Russia."

They were said also to hold him responsible for the defeat of Marshal Erwin Rommel in Africa on the ground that it might have been averted had he followed different tactics in southeastern Russia and taken early steps to reinforce the African forces with soldiers from the eastern front.

Hitler's speech of Nov. 8 indicating that he planned an even more thoroughgoing nazification of the army and further infiltration of SS men into the armed forces was said to have materially strengthened the hand of the junta among old-line army officers.

In that speech the possibility of defeat seemed to weigh heavily upon the fuehrer's mind, for he said he would never flee the country if things went wrong, and he declared that, unlike the kaiser, he would never give up.

Allied victories in North Africa, continued bombings of Germany by growing Allied air power and the generally low morale of the country were said to be accepted by the junta as signs of doom for Germany.

The informant said the military group was betting on these alternatives.

1. In case of a stalemate or peace they will be able to eliminate Hitler with Allied blessings and perhaps establish another government, possibly monarchistic

2. In case of outright German defeat they will be in a position by isolation of Hitler to ask the Allies to accept the Junker class as the nucleus of a new government and would seek to convince the United States and Britain that they should be left with sufficient military strength to constitute a "German watchdog against Russia."

The curtain will rise at 8:15 p. m. today on the Mansfield Senior high school stage for the comedy, "The Ghost Flies South," presented by the January graduating class, under the direction of Earl L. Heasley.

Laid in the same scene for the three acts, the plot deals with adventures of Anita and Diano who win $400,000 gambling in the stock market. DIRECTS FIRM OBEY WLB ORDER

FDR Tells Montgomery-Ward To Comply With Union Membership Ruling.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt directed Montgomery Ward and company today to comply "without further delay" with a War Labor Board order that the big Chicago mail order firm should include a "maintenance of membership" clause in a contract with an employe union.

The chief executive, in a letter to the company's president, Sewell Avery, said he considered "such a course of action essential in the interest of our war effort."

Montgomery Ward had rejected the board's order, handed down Nov. 5, which called for a union maintenance contract and also for compulsory arbitration and a guarantee of wages and working conditions for a year.

The firm said, however, that if the president as commander in chief, directed that the company accept the WLB's rulings, it would obey. It contended the rulings were illegal and uneconomic.

The firm had particularly objected to the maintenance of union membership clause, saying this was but a form of closed shop.

The maintenance clause gives employes who are union members 15 days to withdraw from the union if they do not wish to be bound to remain as members for the life of the contract.

But, argued the company, "the employes who are members of the union would not be free to resign from the union without being discharged, and Ward's would not be free to retain a competent worker who had resigned from the union."

Two Mansfield men, charged with contributing to the delinquency of minors had pleaded guilty before Juvenile Judge Stuart Cramer today while the jury trial of a third person faced with a similar charge had been set for Monday, Dec. 7, at 9:30 a. m. in the common pleas courtroom.

Jesse C. Marshall, 558 Heineman boulevard, landscape gardener, was sentenced to one year in the workhouse and fined $500 and costs subject to a mental test when he appeared before Judge Cramer this morning. Marshall was charged with molesting a five-year-old girl to whom he was related.

Upon the order of the juvenile judge a jury of 16 persons was drawn by Clerk of Courts Howard Wenning to sit at the trial of Elmer Geddes for Dec 7. Geddes is charged with contributing to the delinquency of a four-year old girl.

Joe Grohol, 555 North Mulberry street, was given a bench parole for a three-year period when he pleaded guilty but denied any intent to molest a minor. The judge said Grohol had "acted in a manner tending to contribute to the delinquency of a minor girl."

COUNTY TAX FUNDS STUDIED

Ohio C. of C. Researcher Gives Talk at Meeting.

Receipts and expenditures of Richland county tax money in 1943, with comparisons to 1942 transactions, were discussed before the Richland County Tax league last night by Grover Mills of the research department of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce.

The meeting, attended by county and city taxpayers, was held in the assembly of the Mansfield Chamber of Commerce. At a later date representatives of the research bureau will conduct a similar meeting on Mansfield tax issues.

SLIGHT GAIN SHOWN IN CITY EMPLOYMENT

October Figure 1.01 Per Cent Ahead of September; 12.08 Per Cent Below '41.

October industrial employment in Mansfield increased only 1.01 per cent over the September payroll, according to a Chamber of Commerce survey released today showing 10,611 workers last month, as compared to 10,503 in September.

On a percentage basis from 1941 and 1942, October shows a 12.08 per cent loss, 12,080 industrial workers having been reported in the same month last year. The aggregate percentage loss to date is 12.25 per cent. September employment a year ago totaled 12,810.

In Richland county a sales tax increase of 6.53 per cent is claimed for October, with state tax stamp purchases totaling $50,756 and compared to $47,440 for September. However, October, 1942, indicated a loss of 16.39 per cent from a year ago.

Bank clearings of $10,667,173 for October represented a 10.41 per cent gain, according to the survey, but as compared to a year ago October brought a 52.57 per cent loss.

There were 242,913 bus passengers who used the city's transit system in October, a gain of 13.56 per cent over September. Postal receipts were up 6.74 per cent over September, to $29,102.

Mercantile employment remained stationary at 1,905, showing a gain of 13.65 per cent in store employment over a year ago.

Carloadings in October totaled 3,201 cargoes, a gain of 5.25 per cent over September but a loss of 29.26 per cent as compared to October of a year ago.

County Sales Tax Down, Others Climb

While a number of the more populous counties in Ohio were showing increases in sales tax receipts during the first week of November, Richland county collections dropped $2,936 below receipts for the corresponding week of 1941.

Total collections for the first week of this month amounted to $12,242 as against $15,178 in the first week of November last year.

Receipts in the county to Nov. 8 totaled $461,956. At the same time last year they amounted to $612,407.

Counties with a heavy concentration of war industries generally are showing gains now over last year in tax receipts. Among them are Marion, Summit, Stark, Trumbull, Lucas, and Cuyahoga.

RESOLUTIONS ON FISHING RULES SENT TO STATE

Richland Committee Favors New Rules For Charles Mill, Pleasant Hill.

Resolutions voted at a meeting of the Richland County Conservation committee in Mansfield were submitted at a district conservation meeting for 13 northcentral Ohio counties last night at Norwalk by Gordon H. Ensminger and Harry Darling, representing Richland county sportsmen and farmers.

The resolutions, which propose changes in fishing regulations and the handling of conservation practices at the Charles Mill and Pleasant Hill reservoirs, will be sent to the Ohio Conservation commission which meets in Columbus next month to set up the 1943 fishing laws.

Among the proposals of the Richland county group were these:

That the open season on bass in Ohio begin not earlier than June 16 and close not later than Dec. 1, eliminating spring bass fishing.

That steps be taken to obtain fishing easements on streams in the Mansfield district by the state conservation division.

That the division of conservation and natural resources exert all possible efforts to restore the waters of Charles Mill and Pleasant Hill reservoirs to pool level.

That the practice of wading by fishermen be prohibited at Chares Mill and Pleasant Hill reservoirs in order to preserve fish spawning beds and aquatic vegetation.

That the stream improvement program be extended and increased throughout this district.

In their resolutions, the Richland county group commended the division of conservation and natural resources for planting fish and duck food and cover at Charles Mill and Pleasant Hill reservoirs and for the division's fish stocking program in this area during the past two years.

FINDS PUBLIC READY TO GIVE UP EASY LIFE

Americans Willing to Sacrifice Everything But Liberty, WPB Finds.

CHICAGO—(INS)—There is one thing the American family is not giving up. That is freedom.

But Americans are giving up hundreds of other things in order to preserve their freedom that the one thing, freedom, is not lost.

That is disclosed in statistics compiled by the War Productions board. The average family is found furnishing the iron and steel for two .30 caliber machine guns a year and is supplying copper, lead, rubber, plastics and hundreds of other materials, to keep guns firing and to keep the men who fire them along our far-flung fronts.

So far the diversions have brought only a few shortages to Mr. and Mrs. America and their sons and daughters.

Aluminum was the first material to become short. It was short long before Pearl Harbor. The first order to limit materials was M-1, issued on June 30, 1941.

It takes 2,000 tons of aluminum a year out of outboard motors; 24,285 tons out of cooking utensils and other household equipment, 5,301 tons from electrical appliances, 10 tons out of golf clubs, 265 tons out of musical instruments, 2,100 tons from radios, three tons out of razors, 486 tons out of washing machines and ironers and 20,000 tons out of automobiles.

These 56,000 or more tons of aluminum are being given up by the 35,000,000 American families. That means the average family is giving up 3.12 pounds of aluminum a year. That amount of aluminum is required for eight incendiary bombs—eight new fires for Berlin. Or, it might have gone into a bomber, the fuel tank of a fighter or the trusses of a transport or a thousand and one other vital parts of a war machine.

And so the story goes—in brass, wool, lead, nickel, rubber, silk, tin—the American family is giving them to war production and the American and United Nations' soldiers, sailors, marines and fighters in the air.

Iron and steel. That is where the Americans and the youngsters really shine. More than 5,500,000 tons from autos. And 293 tons from flower stands. And 22 tons from razors—the finest steel in the world. From ash trays, 1,100 tons, from toys, 100,000 tons, from venetian blinds, 25,000. From all sources that's 7,336,389 tons.

That is 419.2 pounds per American family, and that gives the iron and steel for two machine guns.

Today Uncle Sam is asking for all your scrap, for everything you can spare that contains metals vital for the war effort.

Dentist Says That Tooth Cavity May Be Family Trait

CHICAGO — (U.P.) — Dr. T. A. Hardgrove, Fond du Lac, Wis., dentist, made a gloomy forecast for babes in the October issue of the Journal of the American Dental association.

If their parents have toothaches, they probably will, too, Hardgrove said.

"Tendencies to tooth decay may be inherited along with the type of glandular mechanism of the parents," he said.

His studies have shown that all the phenomena of tooth decay are "endocrine manifestations" and that "we inherit our tendencies to dental decay because we inherit the endocrine mechanism to a large extent."

"In families, we frequently find decay in the same areas of the same teeth," he said.

SEEK FIRST AID LINE

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal. —(U.P.)— The California Retail Grocers and Merchants association has petitioned the State Board of Pharmacy for permission for retail grocers to sell numerous first aid drug articles for the duration, such as adhesive tape, iodine, Epsom salts, aspirin, cotton, boric acid and corn plasters.

ALL OUT OF CLOCKS

SAN DIEGO, Cal.—(U.P.)—The thousands of war workers here have bought up all the alarm clocks in the city, and new arrivals declare it is absolutely impossible to obtain one.

DONATE CUTS

CINCINNATI —(INS)— Pleas for scrap to be converted to war use are being taken literally and to heart by University of Cincinnati students and faculty.

A preliminary search for old metal engravings and cuts used in campus publications and accumulating since 1900 yielded nearly 700 pounds of copper and 200 pounds of zinc.

NEED SPRUCE FOR AIRPLANES

Huge Trees Fall Before Ax of Woodsmen in Olympic Peninsula Area.

OLYMPIA, Wash.—(U.P.)—In the vast silences of the Olympic peninsula, long known as the "last frontier" in continental United States, logging crews today are cutting the finest Sitka spruce trees to use for airplanes and gliders.

The State of Washington possesses the best stand of spruce in the nation on the peninsula and only recently agreed to permit lumber trucks to bring the giants of the forests out to mills.

More than 250,000,000 board feet of the finest spruce lumber is available in two or three blocks on the peninsula, in stands which never have known the ring of the woodman's ax or the snort of catepillar tractors.

For years the timber on state and university lands has been held from cutting, despite protests of commercial loggers and mill operators who had cut all other available timber in their areas. But with the coming of the war, school leaders bowed to WPB demands and acceded to selective cutting of the largest spruces.

The WPB is financing the building of roads into the deep forest areas to bring out the trees, since state or local funds are not available. So valuable is the spruce that when public sale of the trees was held loggers offered as high as $13.25 a thousand board feet for timber the state land board had figured should bring $7.50.

Later, it is expected the state will be asked to permit cutting of other commercial lumber, such as Douglas fir and hemlock. Lumbermen also would like to cut the spruce now locked in the newly-created Olympic national park, but such permission would take an act of congress.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN
Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Airway Stars to Appear In City

News Analyst and Singer to Boost War Bond Rally

Coming here to spur the Richland county women's November war bond sales that will buy a bomber to help beat the Axis, Arthur Reilly, prominent radio news analyst, and Miss Dorothy McVitty, nationally-known 20-year-old singing star, will appear in Mansfield at a War Bond rally, next Tuesday night at John Simpson auditorium.

The rally, climaxing the $175,000 "Buy a Bomber" contest, will be held at 8 p. m. under the auspices of the Women's organizations in Richland county participating in the drive. Mrs. Louis J. Ott is chairman of the women's committee for the county sale of war savings bonds and members of her group are making a personal appeal before each club in connection with sending a large delegation to the rally.

Both Reilly and Miss McVitty are now located in Cincinnati. Reilly joined the WLW news staff in September of this year and is heard daily at 11 p. m. from this station and is also heard with other news experts on "Views On the News," broadcast over WLW and NBC network each Sunday afternoon. He will make his regular 11 p. m. broadcast by special wire from Mansfield Saturday.

ARTHUR REILLY

DOROTHY McVITTY

Son of the late Congressman Thomas L. Reilly of Connecticut, Reilly has had a widely varied career that included 30 years as a newspaperman on leading eastern dailies, 10 years as a Washington radio news commentator and several years with the U. S. Consular corps in Germany, Sweden and Poland. He also served one term as U. S. Commissioner of Conciliation for the Department of Labor.

Miss McVitty will be heard in a program of songs opened by the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner." In a nation-wide contest conducted on the General Electric "Hour of Charm" in December, 1941, she was selected by Phil Spitalny and his All-Girl orchestra as the most outstanding singer among the co-eds of the country's universities. As the winner she was awarded a cash prize of $1,000 and a $4,000 musical scholarship fund was established in her name at her college, Ohio State university.

As vocalist at WLW Miss McVitty is continuing her voice study at the Conservatory of Music in Cincinnati.

Available records indicate an organized system of shorthand was used as far back as 63 B.C.

HERE ARE THE THINGS SERVICE MEN WANT

One you may never have thought of . .

● You can't send service men even the small personal gifts you ordinarily gave. And bigger things take up too much space; soldiers and sailors have to "travel light." But their letters ask the "folks back home" for these: cigarettes, home-made cake, pen and pencil with clips; wallets with insignia. And it's amazing how many ask for Noxzema. Here's why:

Men in the service are out in all kinds of weather. They get windburned, sunburned, chafed. Feet get sore, hands chapped; shaving in cold water becomes a major problem. They want Noxzema because this one jar, that takes so little space, brings such quick relief these 5 ways:

1 SHAVING IRRITATION. Noxzema softens tough beard, helps protect sensitive skin, even when shaving with cold water. It's a grand brushless shave, too; can be used without water.
2 TIRED, BURNING FEET. A little Noxzema rubbed in after a day's march brings wonderful relief; it's greaseless; won't stain socks or bed clothes.
3 PAINFUL CHAFING. Rough work clothes often bring on chafed spots; Noxzema gives quick, soothing relief, helps promote quicker healing.
4 SUNBURN AND WINDBURN. Noxzema cools, soothes, relieves badly sunburned and windburned skin.
5 CHAPPED HANDS, FACE, LIPS. Noxzema is medicated; it helps heal the tiny cuts in rough, chapped skin.

Give some man in the service a treat he'll thank you for! Get a jar of Noxzema at any drug store and include it in your next package.

SPECIAL OFFER! For a limited time, you can get the big 75¢ jar of Noxzema for only 49¢ (plus tax). Don't miss this offer!

IS YOUR CHRISTMAS LIST ALL READY?

Perhaps you've even started checking off the presents you've already bought. Many people have. We've never known a year when so many people began their shopping early.

We've found that it's because thrift dictates forethought. Nobody can afford lavish or hasty shopping this year, for we all have War Bonds to buy, and that comes first.

Last-minute, hurry-up buying often means you can't get exactly the gifts you want for the price you want to pay. Sometimes substitutions are necessary, and they may cost more than you had planned to spend.

Here at Penney's we made our Christmas plans early, too—and your Penney store is ready, now, with the practical gifts you want, at the sensible prices you want to pay.

HOTEL WORKERS DISPLACED BY ARMY GET JOBS

Many Enter Military Service While Others Improve Their Situations.

(By United Press)

CHICAGO — When Uncle Sam transformed the Stevens and Congress hotels into units of the Army Air Force Technical School, many observers wondered where and how 2,000 "evicted" hotel employes would find future work.

Actually, the great majority not only were able to find new jobs promptly, but many even bettered themselves.

Hotel authorities disclosed recently that those on former hotel payrolls, including dishwashers and maitres d'hotel, elevator operators and executive managers alike, are once again on friendly terms with a paymaster, including none other than Uncle Sam.

Faces familiar to erstwhile guests in the hotel restaurants still are on hand supervising the cafeteria-style feeding of thousands of Air Force students in the Stevens grand ballroom.

Now functioning as kitchen foreman in Unit No. 1 (the Stevens) are Henry Richter, formerly chief chef of the Congress hotel, and Cyrille Du Muyt, Belgian-trained chef, who for 11 years prepared banquets at the Stevens.

The blunt "come-and-get-it" style of the army chow line is not disconcerting to the cuisine artists who in peacetime provided exquisite dishes for well-to-do guests, because both have seen military service.

Other cases where hotel employes remained to perform essential duties in the new army units include Marion Edwards, for 11 years secretary to Jay Jones, former resident manager of the Stevens, and now a secretary to Col. Alfred Lindeberg, executive officer of the school commandant; and "Scotty" Miles, the Stevens' front office manager and now administrative assistant to Lt. Col. Jack H. Turner, executive officer of Unit No. 1.

Frank Vacey, vice president and business agent of the Hotel and Apartment Hotel Service Workers' Union, pointed out that about 10 per cent of the Congress-Stevens group took jobs in war plants.

How to Make a Splendid Cough Syrup at Home

A Big Saving, and It's So Easy! No Cooking!

Cough medicines usually contain a large quantity of plain syrup—a good ingredient, but one which you can easily make at home. Take 2 cups of granulated sugar and 1 cup of water, and stir a few moments until dissolved. No cooking! No trouble at all. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.

Then get from your druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. This gives you a full pint of truly wonderful medicine for coughs due to colds. It makes a real saving for you, because it gives you about four times as much for your money. It lasts a long time, never spoils, and children love it.

This is actually a surprisingly effective, quick-acting cough medicine. Promptly, you feel it taking hold. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes and makes breathing easy. You've never seen anything better for prompt and pleasing results.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, a most reliable soothing agent for throat and bronchial membranes. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

NUPTIAL VOWS SPOKEN IN ST. MARK'S CHURCH

Miss Geraldine Burns Becomes Bride of Pvt. Paul Nolan Gurik In Ceremony Wednesday Night; Reception Held at Home.

BEFORE AN ALTAR banked with palms, ferns and chrysanthemums, illuminated only by four seven branch candelabra, and candles in the background, Miss Geraldine E. Burns became the bride of Pvt. Paul Nolan Gurik last evening at 8:30 o'clock in St. Mark's Lutheran church. Rev. C. A. Portz read the single ring ceremony.

Nuptial music was furnished by Mrs. C. A. Portz, at the organ, and Leo Hans, vocalist. Selections by Mrs. Portz included "Always," "Ah! Sweet Mystery of Life," "Perfect Day," and the traditional "Wedding March." Mr. Hans sang "Because," "I Love You Truly," and "Oh Promise Me."

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a white floor length gown of moire taffeta fashioned with a fitted top and sweetheart neckline. The skirt was very full, and the sleeves were three-quarter length. Her finger tip veil was held in place by a small lace cap and orange blossoms. The bride's bouquet consisted of gardenias, roses and chrysanthemums.

Miss Dorothy Henry, maid of honor, was attired in a blue taffeta floor length dress, princess style. The bridesmaid, Miss Neva Jean McPike, wore a pink taffeta frock fashioned along similar lines. Both wore pastel shades of chrysanthemums and roses in their hair and carried bouquets of the same.

George Gurik, Cleveland, brother of the groom, served as best man. Ushers were Kenneth Heichel, cousin of the bride, and her brother, Earl Burns, jr.

The bride's mother appeared at her wedding wearing a powder-blue ensemble with black accessories. Her corsage was of red roses and white chrysanthemums.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents for the immediate families and close friends. After the reception, the couple left for a short wedding trip, the whereabouts of which were not disclosed. The new Mrs. Gurik wore a winter white frock with black accessories.

The former Miss Burns is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Burns, sr., of 336 Bowman street. She is a graduate of Mansfield Senior high school, and an employe of the Tappan Stove company.

Mr. Gurish is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Gurik, sr. He, too, attended Mansfield Senior high school, and before leaving for the service, was employed at the Logan garage. When Mr. Gurik returns to Fort Knox, Ky., where he is stationed Mrs. Gurik will make her home with her parents.

Out-of-town guests present at the wedding included George Gurik, Cleveland, and Mrs. John Gurik, jr., of Ashland.

Inspection Held At Meeting of Auxiliary No. 100

Annual inspection meeting of Auxiliary No. 100 to the Sons of Union Veterans was held in the Memorial building last night with Mrs. Edith Snyder presiding for the full ritualistic work. Mrs Zetta McCullough of Butler was the inspecting officer. General Orders No. 1 were read and plans were made to donate to the Ohio Soldiers and Sailors Orphans' home. Fourteen members of the Butler auxiliary accompanied Mrs. McCullough to the meeting. The evening prize was won by Mrs. Ruth Wilkinson.

A gift was presented to the inspecting officer by Mrs. Ella McHugh. Attractive table decorations consisted of red and white chrysanthemums, and blue candles in crystal holders. The serving committee was comprised of Mrs. Grace Downs, Mrs. Dorothy Wilmoth and Mrs. Hazel Brannon.

The group voted to present an American flag to the newly organized Marine Corps auxiliary. The presentation will be made at a covered-dish dinner for both groups on Dec. 19. Election of officers will take place on Dec. 2.

Mrs. Brannon, department inspector, will leave Monday to visit the Alliance and Youngstown auxiliaries. She will be accompanied by Mrs. Mildred Sherer.

Interesting Papers Given On Tourist Club Program

"Chemotherapy" was the topic presented by Mrs. Weldon P. Close when 19 members of the Tourist club were entertained by Mrs. E. A. Merkel at the Women's club on Tuesday. Mrs. Charles Abele and Mrs. George T. Moore were welcomed as substitute members for the year by the president, Mrs. Dimon Herring.

Mrs. Close traced the history and early experiences of medicine and its advancement up to the present miracle sulfa drugs. In an entertaining style the speaker told of the major developments of this phase of medicine. Her presentation, without chemical terms, of the sulfa compound, such as sulfanilamide, sulfapyradine, sulfaguanidine and sulfathiazole, was clearly understandable to the layman. The paper was concluded with a discussion of the new drug, gramicidin, which is stronger than the sulfa drugs but at present is used only externally.

Mrs. G. J. Kochenderfer presented a vitally inspiring paper on "Bureaucracy in a Republic." She gave a brief but thorough history from its beginning together with a forecast for the future. A general discussion followed. Mrs. O. L. Seybold gave an interesting report of the work of the League of Women Voters. Hostess for the meeting to be held at the Women's club on Dec. 1 will be Mrs. R. F. Miller.

I can make you a Better Cook yes, YOU! SAYS AUNT JENNY

"I'M NOT talkin' to the lady across the way. I'm talkin' to you! An' I don't care whether you're new at cookin' or an old hand at it. You can be a better cook if you'll do two things —that's all. (1) Get Spry. (2) Use Spry receipts (there's one below) an' Spry in your own receipts. Do all bakin' an' fryin' the Spry way. See if you ever had such tasty meals an' such compliments on 'em before. An' Spry's a treat to use, always creamy soft an' ready for instant mixin'. For you don't have to keep purer Spry in the refrigerator. It stays fresh an' sweet right on the kitchen shelf."

TRY THIS TIP ON ROASTING YOUR THANKSGIVING TURKEY

After bird has been stuffed and trussed, put it in roasting pan and brush with melted Spry. Then cover lightly with a piece of white cloth which has been brushed thoroughly with melted Spry. Leave cloth on during roasting.

Roast in moderate oven (350° F.), allowing 20 to 25 minutes per pound. See how tender and juicy and flavorful your turkey is, what extra-rich brown gravy you get!

Lighting Effects, Aid To Beauty

MME. QUI VIVE

These are woman who look their loveliest in their own homes. You know why and so do I. They have made a study of lighting effects, have so carefully selected their household furnishings that these inanimate objects have taken on something of their own personalities.

Flattering lights make the handsome woman better looking; they shadow the defects of the plain ones. The hostess not only helps along her own beauty cause, but she is doing a kindness to her guests. Glaring bulbs are a horror; even the young pretties suffer from them. There's no coziness or friendliness in a room that is too brilliantly lighted. There's no desire to be a latestayer. One wants to beat it out into the comforting night, give one's eyes a rest.

Strong, directional lighting is a mistake. It lays a heavy hand on make-up, no matter how perfectly the commercial blushes and the lipstick film have been applied. It accentuates wrinkles in a cruel way. It shadows the eyes. It robs even the loveliest woman of her own radiance. Even table candles should be so shaded that their glow does not cast itself upon more than the chin of those sitting at the dinner table.

Most seriously should be considered the color of the walls in one's home, as they have much to do with the effect of lighting arrangements. A strong green is trying on the complexion, causing a woman to look sallow. Blues should be faint pastel tints. A red wall is an abomination. It makes faces look florrid. Red window draperies are no help.

The most flattering color for light shades is a mauve pink, which absorbes the glare of the yellow rays of the bulbs. Dead white ones are trying; creamy tones are friendlier.

If by chance you are redecorating your house or apartment, do take these matters into consideration. They will make the atmosphere of your home. Endeavor to attain as much color harmony as you can between rugs, draperies, furnishings and light shades. Select chairs for comfort.

When getting a mirror for your dressing table you must remember that mirrors have different colorings. Some carry a green cast, some are blue, others have a pinkish tone which is flattering. But your mirror, before which you do your face painting, must be the good old silvered white. It shows your skin as it is, and no fooling.

Another thing—tone down day time make-up. Go the limit for the festive evening party.

You may garnish pie with whipped cream at serving time if you wish.

Lots of 'Unusual' Marriages Have Been Successful

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

In these topsy-turvy war days, it seemed not unusual when a pretty young bride departed, alone, on her honeymoon, destination 800 miles distant.

The wedding ceremony was performed in the downtown office of a telephone company; the traditional "I do" was said over a telephone wire, and with Marine Pvt. Austin Holmes repeating the same words, the couple were made man and wife.

Dr. T. T. Roberts, pastor of the Strauss Memorial Christian church, Benning, D. C., tied the knot and kissed the bride in the absence of the bridegroom. The parents of both contracting parties were present at the telephone marriage.

Looking back over the history of marriages in this country, it seems to have been the unusual marriages which have lasted. Consider the girl brides, three or four generations ago, who climbed into the covered wagons and trekked to the western frontier with their husbands to take chances with Indians, blizzards and unknown hardships.

The trek lasted sometimes two and three years. Children were born in the covered wagons sometimes, and little heaps of stones, rude monuments surviving to this day, told of heartbreaking deaths on the trail. Yet this country has never produced better women than these prairie wives who, when they pledged their troth "for better or for worse," live up to it.

When I was a very young girl, I was taken to see an old lady, 90, in Wyoming. She had been a covered wagon bride. Her husband had prospered; her sons and grandsons had achieved distinction and wealth.

She showed me the blue calico gown in which she had been married, treasured in a box worth a hundred times the value of its contents. Her mother had wanted her to be married in white, with bridesmaids and all the lovely things that a bride cherishes. But the old lady told me she knew the money would be needed, and her forethought helped to buy that first flock of sheep through which the family fortunes came.

And the blue calico gown and the little square-toed shoes which had walked over so many weary miles marked a wedding in which they lived happily ever after.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"I am at your service for anything," I told my father.

"I know that, Dearest," he said tenderly.

"I believe you told me that when the bizarre-looking old man in the cafe asked where you could be reached by telephone, you gave him the Underwood number," he said.

"Yes, I did," I said, my pulses quickened with the sense of impending drama.

"Then," he directed, "I wish you to go stay at the Underwood house until you hear from that man.

"I shall stay at the Underwoods myself tonight, if you have not heard from the man," he said, "but I have a strong intuition that he will call you within a few hours. When he does I wish you to make an appointment for him to come here at the earliest possible hour. I do not want him to suspect my presence, but I will be in the next suite, with that camouflaged door slightly ajar so that I can hear what goes on.

"I am hoping," he went on gravely, "that he is some tried friend of Georges who can give us a clue to his whereabouts.

"Information which came to me only a little while ago emphasizes the terrible peril in which Georges stands if he is in this country.

"Yes—" his voice now sterner, "the fiends whose machinations are threatening Olga and her daughter, as well as Georges, are diabolically cunning. It may very well be that this strange-looking old man you met at the restaurant is one of the plotters, trying to worm his way into your confidence. I shall be at hand with Adams, to guard you."

"I am not afraid," I said steadily and truthfully. But four hours later, having sped Lillian and Miss Whitlock on their way to the farm, and bidden a repentant Carolyn a tender adieu as she started with Ronald and Dicky for Wolverhampton, as I sat with Harry in the suddenly lonely library, I shook with nervousness when the telephone range, and I heard Harry saying, "Yes, Mrs. Graham is here. She will speak with you."

Then I heard, in the deep, resonant voice of the old man at the cafe, an agitated question.

"Madame Graham? The time has come when I must see you. I hope you have not rescinded your gracious promise to hear what I have to say."

"No, indeed," I told him promptly. "I can see you in an hour from now at the Hotel Lansfield," and I gave him the street and number of the hotel.

Promises To Come.

"Do not go to the desk." I cautioned. "Take the elevator to the ----- floor and come to this number."

He repeated the address and suite number, then added quickly: "I will be there in an hour. Goodbye. I dare not stay here longer."

"I shall have to call Father," I said, "then go back to the hotel as soon as Father sends the car."

"Was that the Father Christmas guy?" Harry asked.

"Yes," I answered, surprised. "You know about him?"

"I know everything, Lady Fair," he said with a grim smile. "Now take my advice and watch your step, or rather his, every second of the time you're talking to him. He doesn't ring true to me, that lad."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

DUCKING ON DEFENSE

Declarers often duck the first round of a suit, so they may be able to win the later ones of it, and they sometimes have to duck the first two to make their contracts, especially at No Trumps. The need of these plays is usually apparent, as the declarer knows just how many cards of the suit he has in the shorter hand. Once in a while the defense has to apply the same principle, except that the holder of the suit can't see how many his partner holds, but must infer it.

(Dealer: West. Both sides vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
1 NT	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
3 ♣	Pass	3 ♥	Pass
3 NT

Two West players, who use powerful No Trumps when vulnerable, and whose partners therefore could bid on very little, got into this over-their-depth contract in a duplicate, one making it by grace of a little luck and a little help. At each table North considered his own hand hopeless, so led the 9 of the unbid diamonds, hoping to hit his partner's best suit.

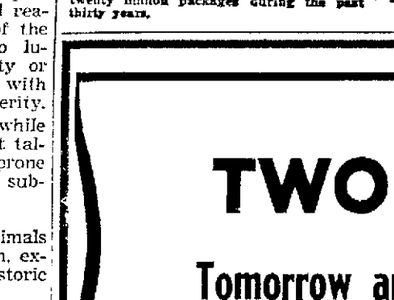
Where West got help, South promptly ran three top diamonds and led a fourth to West. The latter, making sure to keep South out of the lead, led the heart J to the A, finessed the club Q and laid down the A, fortunately dropping the K. Two more clubs followed, then the spade A and the Q, hoping North had the K. He did, for the fourth trick by his side, but had only two hearts left, which he had to lead through South's Q to the K-10, giving West the last two tricks and his contract.

South at the other table reckoned from the diamond 9 led that West surely had four to the J-10 in order to have bid as he did. This would leave North one more diamond. So he ducked, sure that, if North could gain a trick before West had nine, game would be stopped.

After winning that first diamond, West saw a long-shot chance to get enough tricks if North had the heart Q and South a doubleton club K. So he sent the heart J through. But South had the Q and won it, plus five diamonds, setting him two.

* * *

Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

With the two sides able to take the some number of tricks at their own best suits, when is it advisable for one of them to overbid and take a sacrifice, and when does it pay more to let the opponents make their contract?

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—It's going to be tough and maybe it's going to be dull but doubtless we'll get used to this poverty-stricken, leveled-off town.

The picture's confused and cloudy but this is what I get:

Coons

Everybody's making $25,000 so nobody knows who's better than anybody else. The Hollywood social register is climbing wallpaper in confusion, just like most of the folks who tried to figure out the ramifications of the $25,000 limit decree. Nobody can snoot anybody any more.

* * *

THERE are no $300,000-a-picture gals to condescend graciously to poor little $2,000 a week featured players, and even the extras can elbow up to fame with a chummy feeling. After all, when you get down to it, there's not so much difference between $25 a day and $25,000 a year — only three digits. That's practically hello-there distance in these times.

"Who, him?" you hear a chorine mutter scornfully. "Why, that hunk of ham is just a 25-grander. Definitely not my type. I'm leaving this cheesy business to go after one of them signs of wealth."

"Signs? You mean scions?" you say.

"Sure. Dollar scions."

The course of true love will get into the rough. How is a gal going to know if her steady date would have been better than a 25-grander?

* * *

FOR a while there's a faded aristocracy, like White Russia's. Dolly Delicious swaggers into Mocambocirosardi's in her old ratty mink, and people whisper that there goes a gal who in her time made mighty mazuma. Dolly glows with prideful memory as she shuffles her 75-cent Blue Plate Special and the old juke box plays on. . . .

There are no more autograph hounds. The 25-grand monotony has driven them to gin-rummy, drink, or paper dolls, for Art with a Capital $ has gone and they won't know who's really an Actress.

The producers are having fun. No more annoying, vulgar money talk, and they can get a dozen stars for the old-time price of a Garbo smile. The agents all have gone crazy.

And so, perhaps, has all the rest of Hollywood—except those who're crazy anyway. Crazy over pictures.

OBJECTORS TO GET JOBS IN 5 HOSPITALS

Sherwood Cites Shortage of Labor in Assigning Pacifists to Posts.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Conscientious objectors are to be assigned to jobs at five state hospitals for mental patients at the monthly wage of $2.50 each, Charles L. Sherwood, Ohio Welfare director, reported today.

"The employment situation is so critical at hospitals for the mentally ill," said Sherwood, "that immediate steps must be taken to insure adequate maintenance of the institution and preserve public safety.

Under present plans, about 60 conscientious objectors will be assigned in Ohio—20 to the Cleveland State hospital, and 10 each to the institutions at Lima, Dayton, Columbus and Hawthornden, located between Akron and Cleveland.

The program has the approval of the selective service system, said Sherwood, adding that Gov. John W. Bricker, apprised of shortages at institutions, had directed him to take any steps essential to public interest.

"While there may be some difference of opinion as to the reasons why some of these people are conscientious objectors," Sherwood declared, "their principles are based on religious beliefs which have been part of their teachings for many decades, and under our form of government a person is entitled to his own belief.

"Our responsibility to the citizens of the state is to give them protection and to provide adequate care of those who are committed to institutions."

Sherwood reported more than 400 vacancies in Ohio institutions, with shortages so acute in some instances as to threaten normal operations. Despite use of the objectors, the situation will still be serious, he asserted.

Col. Lewis F. Kosch, chief of the division of camp operations for selective service, said the program is voluntary as it applies to objectors.

The program is the first of its kind in the midwest, but similar plans are in operation in seven eastern states.

TALKS FRIDAY

Bee Specialist To Address County Association.

James Bain, Marion bee specialist, will speak at a meeting of the Richland County Beekeepers' association Friday at 8 p. m. in the common pleas courtroom at the courthouse.

Bain is widely known for his production of queen bees and is expected to discuss his work with them in his talk here. The meeting will be open to the public.

Because of a shortage of honey during the past season, Richland county bee colonies will suffer heavy damage this winter unless beekeepers take steps to feed them and pack them for the winter, Philip Stier, president of the beekeepers association, warned.

He urged apiarists to inspect the bees on the first warm day, provide adequate shelter for them, and feed them if possible.

"There was not enough food for the bees last summer, leaving them in a weakened condition so they will freeze easily," Stier said.

SEEK TO RAISE MILK OUTPUT

Federal Officials Consider Subsidies to Dairymen or Price Boost.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Special inducements to stimulate milk production may be offered dairymen if no other means is found of averting a threatened shortage.

Government food agencies, faced with the possible need of rationing principal dairy products because of raising war demands, debated proposals to offer such incentives as federal subsidies or higher prices.

The latter method would involve raising the price ceilings established by the Office of Price Administration at President Roosevelt's direction early in October.

Subsidies, on the other hand, would require between $200,000,000 and $300,000,000 a year in federal funds. This estimate was made by dairy officials of the agriculture department who asked that they not be quoted.

Regardless of whether special inducements are offered, the production of milk and dairy products in 1943 is expected by Secretary of Agriculture Wickard to fall short of requirements of the armed forces, the lend-lease program, and civilians.

Agriculture department dairy officials said restrictions on civilian consumption probably would be less severe if dairymen were offered higher returns.

The question of whether special inducements should be offered may be submitted finally to economic stabilization Director James F. Byrnes for settlement.

WOULD GIVE FDR LIMITED POWER

House Committee Tables All-Out Measure on Tariff Control.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Despite a war department warning that "all-out war cannot be successfully prosecuted under narrow and specific legislation," a congressional committee moved ahead today to give President Roosevelt limited authority to suspend tariff and immigration laws instead of the board grant of power he has requested.

Tabling a bill that would have permitted the executive to suspend at any time during the war any laws or regulations governing the movement across American borders of persons, property or information, the house ways and means committee ordered a compromise plan drafted.

GETS CUSTODY

Wife Receives Children In Fonkalsrud Divorce Case.

Custody of the two minor children of Leslie O. and Mae E. Fonkalsrud has been awarded to the mother instead of the father. The order was made recently in a divorce hearing in Ashland county common pleas court.

A story in The News-Journal stated erroneously that Fonkalsrud, now in the army, received custody of the children. Mrs. Fonkalsrud is in Decorah, Ia., and he is stationed at Camp Grant, Ill. Under the court order, Fonkalsrud, former public relations director at General hospital, will have the right to visit the children.

Fonkalsrud was granted a divorce on grounds of cruelty.

DECLARES FARMERS SHOULD BE SATISFIED WITH PRESENT PRICES

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Farmers "ought to be pretty well satisfied with present prices" and should guard against programs which may lead to inflation, says Murray D. Lincoln, executive secretary of the Ohio Farm Bureau federation.

Lincoln told the federation's annual convention yesterday that "farm prices for needed products are good, the feeding ratio is good."

"To avoid inflation we must take the retarding steps now," he declared. "People don't seem to realize how their every-day decisions lay the ground-work that may lead to inflation—present day action of industry to make bigger profits, labor to get higher wages, farmers to get higher prices."

Perry L. Green, president of the federation, criticized the unwillingness of "class" groups" . . . to merge their own personal interests with the common interests of all."

"I need only to call your attention to the conflicts which have been going on in Washington between industry and labor, agriculture and labor, agriculture and industry," he commented.

"It will be this unwillingness to merge material interests with the social interests of the people—the common man—that may prevent us from winning the peace, even if we win the war."

John Carroll of St. Clairsville and W. D. Galehouse of Marshallville were elected trustees. Trustees re-elected included R. E. Campbell, Wellington; B. S. Van Gorden, Hamilton, and Mrs. C. R. Milnor, Pickerington.

SWEETHEART OF ESCAPER HELD

Charged With Helping Draft Evader Break Jail.

CLEVELAND —(U.P.)— University Heights police today held a young woman war plant worker who admitted aiding her sweetheart, held for investigation for the FBI for draft evasion, escape from the suburb's jail.

Lieut. Harry Gaffney said the woman confessed buying a bolt cutter and carrying it into the two-cell jail to Norman Carpenter, 32, held for federal agents on charges of failure to report to his draft board at Defiance, O., for physical examination.

The bolt cutter was used by Carpenter in cutting a padlock off the door of his cell, police said.

Laff-a-Day

"Hey, pop, does the bride or the groom wear the license plates?"

Clerk John H. Eisaman of the Mansfield board of education doesn't want the door of his office safe blown off again when replacements are so hard to get, so he's posted this notice on the safe door: "This safe doesn't have any money in it as funds are deposited daily in the bank. We just want to save you some trouble and us some repair expense. Thanks, pal." The safe was blown open more than a year ago and the board had trouble finding repairs for the door.

Tuesday was a "red letter" day for Mr. and Mrs. Ray F. Downs who live west of Springmill. Their oldest son, Virgil, returned home from the Great Lakes Naval station for his first furlough to report that he has just been accepted as a machinist's mate. Their next son, Gerald, went to Cleveland for his physical examination and induction into the army, and their oldest daughter, Rhea, contributed a pint of blood as a Red Cross donor. "All that happened to us in one day," Mrs. Downs said.

Firemen at number three station assumed new roles recently when the Mansfield public library set up a neighborhood book station there. All types of reading material are available and book reservations may be made to firemen on duty. The library substation will be open throughout the day, and was created to aid people in that neighborhood to receive books without coming to the downtown main library.

Mansfield's civilian defense organization was certain today that the 10 sirens purchased for air raid warnings won't fall short of their job. The first one to be installed stirred the down town section at 2 p. m. today when it was given a test. Stationed on top the city building, the siren was one of the small ones and it made plenty of noise. When the nine others, including those driven by five horse-power motors, get into action in widely separated sections of the city, civilian defense officials believe all Mansfield will hear the alarm.

NEW PETITIONS

Street Department Workers Seeking Pay Increase.

Council will have additional pay increase requests to consider at the December meeting, under petitions which were filed with Robert Black, city clerk, today.

Salaried employes of the street department ask $25 monthly increases while hourly workers seek a 15-cent-an-hour boost. The petition was signed by 23 workmen.

Garbage department employes petition for an increase in pay equal to the advanced living costs. Hourly workers in the waterworks department also ask for 15 cents an hour more pay.

The pay boost barrage was first laid down three weeks ago when a $25 increase was petitioned for by each member of the police department, followed by a similar petition from the firemen.

Several other salaried and hourly-wage departments also have requested increases.

NELSON GIVES AIR INDUSTRY TOP RANKING

Former G. E. President Heads Group as WPB Sees Over 45,000 Planes in '42.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—WPB Chairman Donald M. Nelson today assured aircraft top-flight ranking in the nation's armament program by naming a four-man board to take complete charge of the 1943 output of combat planes.

Charles E. Wilson, former president of General Electric, who recently came to the war production board as vice chairman in charge of production, was appointed as head of the new aircraft committee.

Other members are Maj. Oliver P. Echols, of the Army Air Corps; Rear Admiral Ralph Davison, of the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics, and Harold E. Talbott, chief of the WPB Aircraft division.

The new group is expected to provide a powerful impetus in the output of planes, ending criticism that the aircraft production program lacked adequate direction and came off second best in the competition for materials.

WPB officials have estimated this year's production of planes at between 45,000 and 50,000, although the original goal was 60,000. President Roosevelt said recently that materials were going into the production of a fewer number of better and more heavily armored craft.

The 1943 goal was set by the president last January at 125,000 planes.

It had been previously reported that Wilson's first assignment would be to concentrate on aircraft production. The new board, it was said, will have top responsibility for all phases of the program, superseding the aircraft scheduling unit at Wright Field, O.

Nelson announced construction work on one of the largest plants in the world at Chicago to expand airplane engine output. Every bit of emphasis, he said, was being placed on the production of four-engine bombers that could be flown to the battlefronts.

Asks Mothers to Halt Delinquency Of 'Victory Girls'

NEW YORK — (AP) — Rising juvenile sex delinquency among those who label themselves "victory girls" must be halted by action of mothers and schools, former Magistrate Jeannette G. Brill told the Federation of Jewish women yesterday.

The former Brooklyn's children's court jurist attributed the "sad situation" to a changed psychology which she said existed among younger girls today.

"They label themselves the victory girls," she asserted. "They think that the boys are here today but they may be dead tomorrow, and they reason: 'We'll give them all they want.'"

"We have got to stop bringing unwanted war babies into the world," she declared.

The former magistrate said she feared America's delinquency rate would rise to the 46 per cent found in England, "unless we have unity of action in doing something about it."
